SCs Reject Revision Of Car Insurance

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Times Political Reporter
VANCOUVER—The B.C. Social Credit League convention today rejected a Chilliwack resolution asking the government to bring about a revision of auto insurance rates.

The resolution called for "a just and adequate rate and coverage."

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said B.C. has no control over auto insurance rates, as these are fixed by the companies concerned.

A resolution from Cowichan-Nanaimo asking the government to investigate dental costs in B.C. was tabled on the motion of Health Minister Eric Martin.

"This resolution is about a year behind the times," Mr. Martin said. "We have already instituted a full inquiry into this matter."

The conference tabled a resolution from Comox asking that dental technicians be allowed to make dental plates, execute repairs, and deal directly with the general public.

This afternoon the conference debated a motion from Saanich asking the government to amend the Motor-Vehicle Act to make it compulsory for each licensee to carry a minimum of $20,000 public liability insurance.

The convention unanimously supported a resolution that the government continue its present policy of refusing recognition to the Communist government of China.

"This refers to diplomatic relations, not trade relations," Attorney-General Bonner said.

"We approve a policy of refusing diplomatic recognition to China, but we are in favor of trade with China."

"We shall have to trade with the world sooner or later. It may as well be sooner."

In another resolution the Social Credit Association of Canada was asked to establish a public relations policy, "which will ensure protection to candidates against damaging publicity."

Hi-Jinks Hit Lord Mayor's Procession

LONDON (Reuters)—The traditional Lord Mayor's parade had an uninvited exhibit Friday when an ancient automobile manned by students followed the end of the mile-long procession.

Cheered on by 100 students running behind it, the car, a 1902 two-cylinder Renault, was out of character with the theme of the procession — "Aluminium, newest of the world's basic metals."

After a brief, hilarious run through London's business district, three mounted policemen, diverted the ancient car and students down a side street.

Riding in his heavy scarlet and gilt state chariot drawn by six dapple greys, the new Lord Mayor, Sir George Ollum Welch, was preceded by military bands and floats demonstrating the functions of aluminium.

One of the floats carried Donald Campbell's jet racing speedboat Bluebird, which last September travelled at 225.63 miles an hour to break the world's water speed record.

UN Police Force Flying From All Over World

LONDON (UP)—A 6,000-man United Nations police force began converging on Naples in Italy today for duty in the Suez Canal zone as quickly as Egypt agrees.

Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser still had not given consent.

He said the government would study the UN resolution setting up the international force "word by word" because Egypt did not intend "to be taken in by deceit after they were unable to take us by force."

DANES FIRST

First to depart for the Naples staging area were about 50 Danish soldiers, airlifted by two U.S. Airforce transport planes from Karup airfield in Jutland in mid-forenoon. Another U.S. Airforce plane picked up 50 Norwegian soldiers at Fornebu airfield, Oslo, and left for Naples in early afternoon.

Other U.S. transports were landing at Bogota, Colombia, to begin the airlift of about 1,200 Colombian soldiers. Colombia's thin mountain air reduced the payload of the big Super-Constellations to about 50 and their equipment each.

Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Finland, Colombia, Canada and India are contributing forces to the UN police units, with the larger shares coming from Colombia, India and Canada, who will contribute a full battalion each. The Scandinavian forces are expected to have a combined total of a battalion. Finland's contribution was to be made strictly on the basis of volunteers and the number was undetermined.

In Naples, Italians and the U.S. Navy were working swiftly to prepare for the first arrivals expected about 9 p.m. (noon, Victoria time).

Albert Carter, First Parachutist In Canada, Succumbs Here at 61

Canada's first parachute officer, Wing Commander Albert Carter, MM, died in St. Joseph's Hospital here Thursday and funeral services will be held from Hayward's chapel Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. He was 61.

In a fabulous career of more than 100 jumps, 10 years as chief RCAF parachute instructor, he never broke a bone. His last jump was in 1947 at Langford Fair when his chute opened just 100 feet above the ground.

He joined the Royal Flying Corps in 1917. He was the first jumper to attempt moving pictures on the way down and was the first to carry instruments to gather data on chute performance.

In 1925 he established a jump record of 20,600 feet without oxygen—the first human to do this. He ended his career as chief administration officer at Patricia Bay.

Born in Leeds, England, he had lived here for 15 years. His residence was at 842 Selkirk.

The late air force officer was a member of the 31st Alberta Battalion Association, and the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans' Association.

BULLETINS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—The emergency session of the UN General Assembly voted today to give the Middle East problem and the Hungarian situation high priority in the regular fall assembly opening next Monday. (See page 3.)

VIENNA (UP)—Hungarian Communists set up "terror courts" today in a new desperate move to smash still blazing rebel resistance.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Units of the U.S. fleet are on the move from west coast ports.

CAIRO (UP)—An Egyptian spokesman said today that despite denials, Anglo-French forces did bomb civilians in Port Said.

VIENNA—It has been estimated at least 20,000 persons have been killed in Budapest alone since Soviet forces began their suppression of the revolt last Sunday morning.

BONN (Reuters)—The West German newspaper Die Welt said today the Soviet foreign ministry press chief, Leonid Ilychev, has indicated Russia is willing to discuss the question of sending United Nations observers to Hungary.

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—The Pope tonight broadcast a peace appeal to the world, the first of its kind since a similar appeal eight days before the outbreak of the Second World War.

ROTTERDAM (AP)—Dutch and Danish salvage companies will clear obstructions from the Suez Canal for the United Nations it was announced here today.

Thousands Ready; Western Nations Fear New Korea

LONDON (CP)—Russia said tonight permission will be granted for trained volunteers to fight on the side of Egypt unless British, French and Israeli troops withdraw from Egyptian soil.

The Russians raised anew the threat of the Middle East turning into another Korea as advance units of a UN international police force headed for Naples—last stop before actually setting foot in the Suez Canal area to take on the task of keeping peace in the Middle East.

The British, French and Israelis already have said they will withdraw. But the time element—both for the withdrawal and the possible sending of Russian volunteers—remained uncertain.

In Washington, the U.S. state department said it would bar volunteers—as far as it is legally able to do so—from fighting on either side in Egypt.

Applications 'In Thousands'

A Soviet foreign ministry spokesman in Moscow told a press conference:

"Responsible organs of the Soviet government will raise no obstacles to the departure of these citizen volunteers" if foreign troops remain in Egypt.

(At Cairo, an Egyptian embassy spokesman had said a short time earlier the number of applications from Soviet volunteers "now runs into several thousands.")

The announcement, which the Russian spokesman identified as a Tass News Agency statement, did not set a time for withdrawal of the British, French and Israeli forces.

The Moscow statement said: "Soviet government circles express satisfaction at the British and French acceptance of the cease-fire. While welcoming this latest move they express apprehension lest the move should have the ulterior motive of obtaining a breathing space for their troops.

"The recent bombings and fresh landings of troops by air and sea indicate that the British and French governments do not intend to withdraw their troops from Egypt."

"If the British, French and Israeli governments do not withdraw their troops in accordance with the UN resolution the Soviet government believes this will revive the threat to peace."

"While the Soviet government adheres to a policy of peaceful co-existence it cannot stand by and see a peace-loving independent people attacked by imperialist aggressors."

"If the aggressors do not withdraw their troops in accordance with the UN resolution, it is the view in Soviet government circles that responsible Soviet citizens who have volunteered to help Egypt in her fight against the aggressors from leaving the Soviet Union."

Eisenhower Rejects 'Summit' Conference

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—President Eisenhower today told the Swiss government the United States wants to continue handling current international crises in the United Nations rather than join in a new "summit" conference of major powers at this time.

Eisenhower sent off a reply to the Swiss invitation to the United States, Britain, France, Russia and India for a new conference of heads of government to avert danger of a third world war.

The announcement of Eisenhower's reply was made at his farm home here shortly after he arrived from Washington for a few hours of relaxation.

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, said the president sent this cable to President Markus Feldmann of Switzerland: "The federal council's suggestion for a meeting in Switzerland of the five chiefs of government has revived urgent and sympathetic consideration here."

"I appreciate the sincerity of the Swiss proposal and share the concern for the preservation of peace which inspired it."

"However, the United Nations is actively seized with the various problems posing a threat to world peace and I believe that interests of all will best be served by carrying these initiatives through to a successful conclusion."

Winch Called Communist By Solon Low

VANCOUVER (CP)—Solon Low, national leader of the Social Credit party, Friday night repeated a House of Commons statement that he thinks CCF Member of Parliament Harold Winch is a Communist.

(Mr. Winch, asked later to comment, said he is "not surprised. . . . You can expect abuse from such a man and such a party. He does not understand the situation. I think people here know me well enough to realize how foolish his words really are.")

Mr. Low was asked by a student questioner during a forum at the University of British Columbia whether he believes calling opponents Communists is a "good political technique."

He replied: "If they really are Communists."

The questioner said: "I was in the House of Commons, August 15, when you called Harold Winch a Communist. Do you really believe he is?"

"Yes, I do," the Social Credit leader said.

NO RIVALRY AT TOP

To a gathering of more than 600 persons exuberantly confident about Social Credit prospects in the next federal election, Mr. Bennett made it plain that he and Mr. Low, veteran Social Credit member of Parliament from Peace River, are not rivals for the leadership.

Bonner Chosen to 'Mastermind' Socred Federal Election Drive

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Times Political Reporter

VANCOUVER (CP)—Attorney-General Robert Bonner of British Columbia is to "mastermind" a Social Credit "march on Ottawa" in the 1957 federal elections it was announced here Friday.

Solon Low, national leader of the Social Credit party, declared himself fit to lead the party. Premier Bennett of British Columbia said he will support him.

But, Mr. Low told the B.C. Social Credit League's annual convention, Mr. Bonner has been named chairman of the national executive's special committee to map out the "on-to-Ottawa" campaign.

"We are tremendously thankful to have a young man of his great capabilities," the national leader said.

Lodge Tells UN: Permanent Cure Vital in Suez

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—The United States proposed today that the regular fall session of the United Nations General Assembly give high priority to long-range plans to settle the Suez problem and the Israeli-Arab differences.

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

By DINAH KERR and IRVING STRICKLAND

Question: "Cost of living in Canada has climbed to a record high of 119.8 per cent. Do you think managing a family budget is more difficult than 10 years ago?"

Mrs. Marie Du Kelow, 219 Island Highway: "I certainly am paying more now than I have in the past—and I'm buying pretty well the same things I've always bought. I think salaries should be higher to keep up with the cost of living."

Du Kelow Hendry

George Hendry, plasterer, 1882 Taylor: "You can sure say that again. My wife usually handles the money in our family but I know that my salary hardly covers the cost of living."

Ron Tate, splicer's helper, 257 Cook Street: "I imagine the cost of living is higher, but I'm a single man. My own costs have gone up, but of course we have higher wages to balance them."

Tate Hitchin

Bill Hitchin, splicer, 1955 Kings Road: "I think managing a budget is more difficult. Wages aren't high enough right now—not even for a single man. The government should try to lower the cost of living."

Mrs. G. Penman, 2072 Allenby: "Very definitely. We're getting the same amount of money but everything is going up in price, particularly food. The prices have been going up steadily. I've noticed the price of canned goods has jumped considerably in the past two months."

Penman Blades

Mrs. H. E. S. Blades, 1160 May Street: "Some things have gone up in price—canned goods, milk, bread, eggs and meat—our main diet, in fact. There has been a great change in prices since I raised my family. I don't even buy butter anymore. We use margarine all the time."

U.S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., addressed an emergency session of the 76-nation Assembly which has been dealing with the Middle East situation and the Soviet intervention in Hungary. The Assembly's regular session opens Monday. Lodge urged that the Assembly "give urgent consideration" to two U.S. proposals setting up machinery to seek permanent settlements on both the Suez and Israeli-Arab problems.

These U.S. proposals were submitted to the emergency meetings but were sidetracked by the Assembly's efforts to get the fighting stopped and to set up an international police force for the Middle East.

Lodge also proposed that the regular assembly give priority treatment to the Hungarian situation.

For the second time in six days the Assembly Friday night called on Russia to withdraw its forces from Hungary.

The call was contained in a resolution proposed by Cuba, Ireland, Italy, Pakistan and Peru. It passed 48-11 with only the Soviet bloc, India and Yugoslavia opposed.

Canada supported the resolution.

Sixteen countries abstained.

FREE ELECTIONS ASKED
The Assembly said specifically for the first time that "free elections should be held in Hungary under United Nations auspices," once order had been restored.

Bitterly critical of Soviet military intervention, it declared "the repression undertaken by the Soviet forces in Hungary" violated the UN charter and the 1947 Hungarian Peace Treaty. It also said foreign intervention there is an "intolerable attempt" to deny the people their rights.

The Assembly passed two other resolutions for relief to the Hungarian people. One, sponsored by Austria, calling for "large-scale immediate relief," went through 67-0 with eight abstentions. The other, sponsored by the United States, was adopted 53-9 with 13 abstentions.

UN Police Must Move Quickly---Pearson

Stresses Urgency to Prevent 'Other' Intervention in Mid-East

By DAVE MCINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson said Friday it is more important than ever to get the United Nations police force to the Middle East as quickly as possible to prevent another power intervening there.

He did not name Russia specifically but made it clear he was referring to the Soviet Union. He told a press conference that as soon as the UN force is operating effectively in the Middle East it would be less tempting for another country to intervene.

Events and rumors of the last 48 hours made speed in getting the force there even more important than a few days ago.

Mr. Pearson was referring to accounts that the Russians are moving military equipment into the Middle East.

Would Defend Itself—Like Policeman

Mr. Pearson said he assumes that no country would want to attack the UN force. If attacked it would defend itself as a policeman uses his truncheon.

In the first phase the force probably would take up positions along the Suez Canal. Later, if Israel withdrew her army within her own territory, the force would patrol the Israeli - Egyptian border.

Mr. Pearson said that if the UN had not intervened in the Middle East situation there would have been grave danger of a continuing conflict between the Anglo-French alliance and the Arab world. That would have put an almost unbearable strain on the Commonwealth.

PERHAPS NO BLUFF
If Russia had made threats to Britain and France just before the cease-fire, what would Russia have done if the fighting were still going on?

"The question is not how serious the (Russian) threat was but how serious the threat is," Mr. Pearson said, answering his own question. The threat might be a bluff, but if the West said so and it was wrong, it would be a big mistake.

The UN move had removed any cloak of legality that Russia might have assumed for action in the Middle East, he added. Though the cease-fire had been an immediate urgency, a political settlement was even more important in the long run. There could be no going back to the conditions of the last seven years.

He said Israel undoubtedly will claim—"and I think they have a right to claim"—some assurance of UN action to give her more security. That could be done only through a political settlement. Asked whether he thinks the UN action will lead to a permanent

Don't Recruit In Canada, Egypt Warned

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has warned Egypt to stop her recruiting campaign in this country.

External Affairs Minister Pearson made this point Friday night.

He said he has asked Egyptian ambassador Hussein el Khatib to stop appealing for Canadian volunteers to fight for Egypt. The ambassador told reporters last Tuesday—before a cease-fire in Egypt was achieved—some Canadians had indicated readiness to volunteer. He appealed for more volunteers, arms or other aid.

Mr. Pearson told him this was not in accord with diplomatic practice and he should refrain from "similar improprieties" in the future. Mr. Pearson indicated the same kind of knuckle rapping would be delivered to any other power taking similar action.

Commons Session About November 19?

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent
OTTAWA—There is a strong possibility that Parliament may be called into session the week of Nov. 19 to give approval to the federal government's action in sending a Canadian unit of about 1,200 men to join the UN force in the Middle East.

The cabinet may meet Monday or Tuesday to pass the necessary order-in-council. By law, Parliament must be summoned into session within 10 days of the order-in-council. The sitting of Parliament is not expected to take more than a week.

Harris on the Brink

MR. HARRIS SAYS CANADA IS wavering on the brink of a serious inflation. Everybody (except, of course Mr. Bennett) knows that. The only question is whether the Federal Government will stop the slide toward inflation and, later on, a bust. Apart from the international crisis, this is by far the most serious question before the Canadian people. And it poses the most formidable test that the St. Laurent Government has ever faced.

Last spring, in his budget speech, Mr. Harris rightly foresaw an incipient inflation, which many of his critics regarded as imaginary. He therefore refused to reduce taxes significantly and thus put more money into the public's hands. Instead, he maintained existing rates, with minor changes, and budgeted for a modest surplus.

Unquestionably this was sound judgment when the first signs of inflation had begun to appear. As the inflationary pressure increased, Mr. Harris's decision was fully vindicated and his policy became more necessary than ever.

If the policy was sound in economics it was considered, at the time, to be dubious in politics. High taxes are never popular. A revenue surplus is a shining mark for an opposition to shoot at. The cry of "over-taxation" comes automatically to the Conservative Party's lips.

Still, with an election at least a year away, Mr. Harris felt able to maintain a strong budgetary barrier against inflation. Moreover, he committed the Government absolutely and without the slightest reservation to the proposition that during times of inflationary danger the Government must budget for a surplus and must not reduce taxes.

Mr. Fulton Fails the Test

WHILE THE FREE WORLD TODAY expresses admiration for the moral leadership Canada has given the United Nations in the Egyptian crisis, Mr. Davie Fulton, M.P., who hopes to become the next head of the Conservative Party, has chosen to make the Government's action a matter of cheap political argument.

He makes much of the charge that Canada sided with Russia against Britain—as gross a distortion of what happened as could be imagined. The fact is that the United Nations Assembly voted 62 to 2, only Britain and France disagreeing, on the question of whether or not the U.N. should discuss the Egyptian problem. If Canada had voted against Assembly discussion of the matter, Mr. Pearson would have been in no position later to bring in his proposal for a U.N. police force, which has been eagerly acclaimed as a workable solution, and, indeed, welcomed by Prime Minister Anthony Eden himself.

On the second question before the Assembly, whether or not there should be a cease-fire, Canada abstained from voting. As Mr. Pearson later made clear, he felt that the United States resolution did not go far enough: it called for a cessation of fighting without any provision for a settlement.

The Canadian record in this crisis has been clear and praiseworthy. In seeking to reap domestic political advantage from so grave a matter, Mr. Fulton obviously falls short of statesmanship. The rank and file of his party will do well to take a searching look at the qualifications of this man who seeks to be their national leader.

FROM WASHINGTON

The Landslide Was Downright Miraculous

IF ever there was a purely personal triumph, it is the triumph which Dwight D. Eisenhower has just enjoyed. For the Democratic victories in both Houses clearly indicate that the President won against a Democratic tide which has been running strongly since 1952. It is a neat trick to win at all against the tide. It is downright miraculous to win by a landslide. It is highly significant, moreover, that the miracle, to the extent that miracles can be planned, was carefully planned by the President himself. Among his associates he never made any bones about the fact that he not only intended to win but that he intended to win by a greater majority than in 1952.

That was the meaning of his decision (which had to be modified because of the foreign crisis) to make a final, major campaign swing through the South.

Quite Aware

The President was quite aware that a southern swing would elect no Republican Senators and few if any Representatives. He never had any doubts whatsoever that he himself would win, and if electing a Republican Congress had been his over-riding concern, he might have devoted his final campaign efforts to helping such threatened and now defeated Republicans as Duff of Pennsylvania, Bender of Ohio or Welker of Idaho.

But as the campaign reached its climax, the political intelligence division of the Republican National Committee received a whole series of reports that the Eisenhower candidacy was going great guns in the South.

When a southern swing to batten down the Eisenhower votes was therefore proposed to him by Republican Chairman Len Hall, the President resisted at first. But when it was pointed out to him that his best chance of bettering his 1952 record lay in the South, he eagerly agreed to Hall's proposal.

He was perfectly frank with his associates, moreover, about the reasons he was so anxious to increase his 1952 majority. One reason was that he wanted to be able to speak with absolute authority in conducting American foreign policy.

He believed that if he won by a reduced majority after a campaign in which his conduct of foreign policy was bitterly criticized, it might be thought abroad—and especially in the Kremlin—that he was not fully master in his own house.

The President is absolutely convinced, moreover, that a time of great and convulsive change is coming for the Soviet Empire.

His reasoning is simple, and based on his own military experience.

He has remarked to several intimates that he is glad he is not in his old friend Marshal Zhukov's shoes. Every military man knows, the President has said in effect, that a foreign army cannot indefinitely hold down a vast and rebellious population—and he is sure that Zhukov knows it too.

PUBLIC SUPPORT

In England the police may very exceptionally be armed for a particular job, but in general they believe themselves—and justifiably—to be able to rely upon the support of the public in the execution of their normal duties. They have of course, the power of the state behind them; but they are regarded and what is more important, they regard themselves, as the principle of an order which is desired and promoted by the public as a whole and not as the instrument by which is imposed upon that public a crippling regimentation.

As Our Readers See It

Beyond Knowledge

As a British Israel speaker I wish emphatically to register dissent from the reported statement in Thursday's issue by R. E. Wemp as summarised by your caption, "Second Coming of Christ in December '57." With this Mrs. Olive Brake, a well known Victorian and lecturer, Mr. D. McKinnon, president, Victoria, B. I. branch, and other colleagues associate themselves.

With many Christians we believe that Bible prophecy indicates that current events, especially those developing in the Middle East, point to the near return of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. But the date is beyond human knowledge. This is the unanimous position of the British Israel World Federation.

Public Ownership of Rails

The railways are asking for another increase in freight rates. Farmers are already squeezed between rising costs of production and falling prices of their produce. They, the farmers, should call for public ownership of all our railways.

Our railways could be operated with greater all round efficiency under a single management. They could and should be run as a co-operative enterprise. Operated as such, there is no reason why the Federal Government could not give to the people of Canada an efficient railway service, equal to the efficient marketing service now given to the prairie growers by the Canadian Wheat Marketing Board.

Mine Escape Shafts

After reading in the Times about the mine disaster at Springhill, N.S. I was wondering why it should not be necessary for a mine which proceeds over 3,000 ft. in a lateral fashion, to have a second shaft, at the other end, as a means of exit and ventilation.

It might add a few cents per ton to the cost of coal, but we would not have the risk of hundreds of men being buried alive when the main shaft is closed by fire and explosion.

The writer has never seen a mine, but perhaps some of your readers who have had experience in this type of work can explain why this is not done.

Milk Prices

It seems time someone refuted the claims by some Vancouver Island Dairy-men as to the loss suffered by them, and the apparent profit by distributors, under the new Milk Board regulations. The figures used are from the Milk Board News Release of October 12 which were published in this paper.

Island production in September 3,884,036 lbs.—used as follows: 3,610,912 lbs. in fluid sales and 273,124 in manufacturing.

Under the old regulations this would have been paid for as follows: (all figures are based on 4 per cent butterfat). The fluid pounds at $6.25 per cwt. $225,682.03 plus the manufactured at $2.24 per cwt. $6,117.98—total value $231,800.01.

Under the new regulations, the fluid at $6.192 per cwt. $228,587.67 plus the manufactured at $2.89 per cwt. $7,893.28—total value $236,480.95.

The above figures show a total loss to the producers on the Island of $319.06 or less than 1 cent per cwt.

It should be stated too that the price for October for fluid has been increased from the above mentioned $6.192 to $6.326 or an increase of 13 4/10 cents per cwt. This shows that while the producers may have lost a small amount in September and the distributors gained, the reverse is to apply for October, and probably subsequent months, to a much greater extent.

ALSO DISGUSTED

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

The President believed that a smashing majority would greatly strengthen his hand in dealing with the dangers and opportunities of the time of great change which he foresees.

His second reason for wanting so badly to increase his majority was quite different, but he was equally outspoken in discussing it with friends. A bigger majority than 1952, the President reasoned, would be an enthusiastic endorsement of "Eisenhower republicanism," and it would thus make it far easier for him to convert his party fully to his own brand of middle-of-the-road conservatism.

Served Notice

In his little speech to the assembled party workers on Tuesday night the President virtually served notice of his intention of remaking his party in the image of what he called "modern republicanism." He has often said to friends that his chief reason for running again was that he needed four more years to remake his party so that he would again be the majority party in the nation.

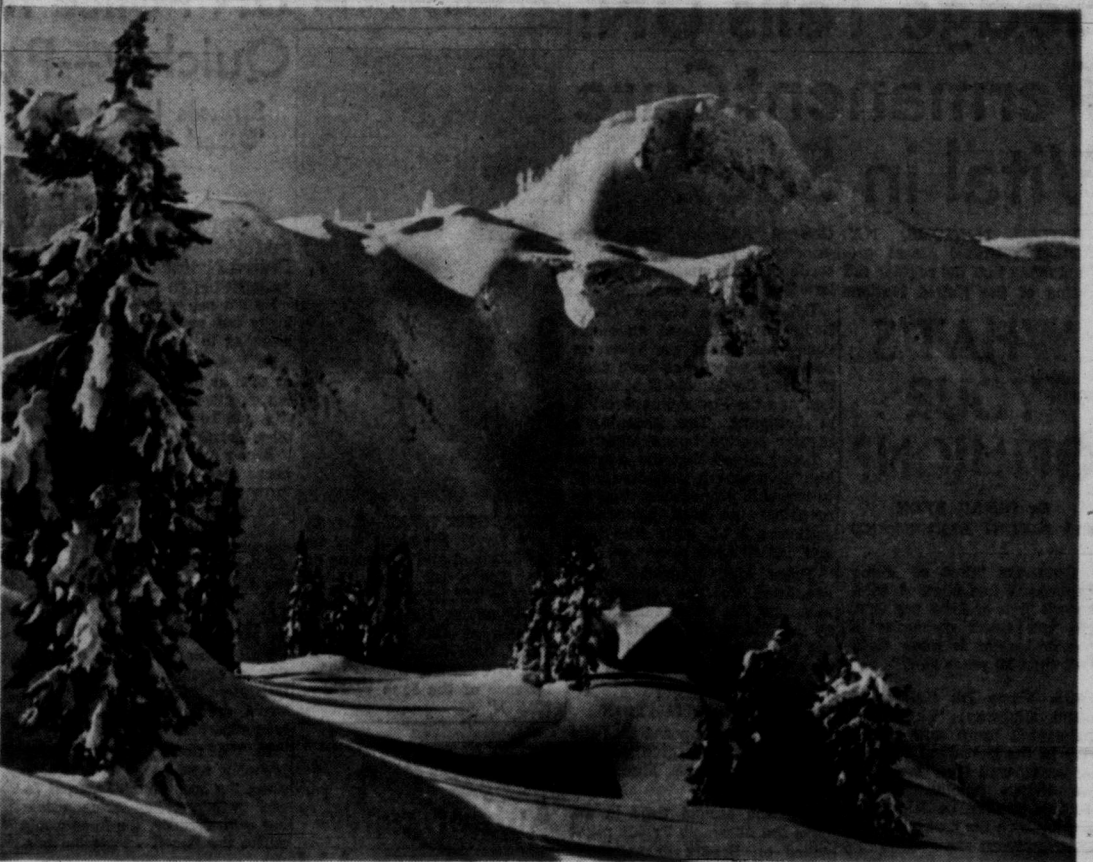

He still has a long way to go. The country gave a ringing endorsement on Tuesday to Dwight D. Eisenhower, but the vote was very far from a ringing endorsement of the Republican party.

Yet his enormous personal triumph has given him an authority in the party he would otherwise have lacked in his second, and last, administration.

Moreover, the Eisenhower of 1956 is very different from the Eisenhower of 1952, when he knew little of politics and constantly turned to others for advice. The strategy of the 1956 campaign was most definitely an Eisenhower strategy, and he is now an acknowledged and confident master of the political art, perhaps the greatest of this generation. He is also a man with a habit of getting what he wants, as his remarkable personal triumph last Tuesday suggests.

LOOSE ENDS

About Men and Forces, and Their Effects

IN the last week the most difficult thing, especially for a thoughtful man, was to think. Few of us, I fancy, were thinking very clearly and in the newspaper offices we lived from hour to hour, even from minute to minute, as the conflicting bulletins came in over the ticker, whole pages of type were altered or thrown away and editorials rewritten, often in 20 minutes, while the printers and presses waited.

These are the usual chores of daily journalism which I was once able to do but cannot do now, which the younger men of the trade have done, though you may not realize it, with superb skill and clear heads. But it is one thing to report the news—a hard thing when it changes several times a day—and quite another to think it through after the last plate is cast and the press is rolling.

WELL, in all this confusion I found myself thinking, with apparent irrelevance, of the greatest man I ever knew. I was thinking of the late John W. Daffoe, a Canadian editor who watched two world crises but did not live to see the third.

One does not need to document at this time the greatness of Daffoe. His memory is secure. The point is that the conclusions of his long lifetime apply with exact relevance and startling accuracy to the crisis of the last ten days. They apply especially to Canada.

Daffoe started as a narrow Liberal partisan (he told me so himself) and something of a Canadian isolationist in the days of the prairie frontier. He ended as an independent, a small "I" liberal, and the strongest voice of internationalism in Canada. He had thought his way through. Unhappily he died before he could see that the nation, after much delay and confusion, was following him.

THERE were many facets to Daffoe's thought but the one immediately relevant to current events suddenly echoed in my memory this week as Mr.

Pearson, his spiritual descendant, was speaking in the United Nations. (How happy Daffoe would have been to find that Canada had produced in a boyish fellow named Mike one of the ablest statesmen in the current world!)

To put the thing simply, Daffoe held that the Commonwealth, then usually called the Empire, could not live long without the United Nations or its equivalent. When his thesis was uttered in the nineteen-twenties and repeated constantly until Daffoe's death in 1944, it was startling, heretical and, in many minds not only dangerous but perhaps disloyal. Yet the events of the last few days, it seems to me, have confirmed it like a judgment from the Supreme Court of history.

AS Daffoe saw the Commonwealth—and he knew almost every corner of it—this extraordinary structure was too varied, composed of too many diverse nations, races, traditions and conflicting practical interests to agree automatically or even regularly on great affairs. At some point, lacking a new agency of agreement, the structure would break.

We are distant here from the scene of events but at this distance surely it is not too much to say that the Commonwealth would have broken this week without that agency of agreement, the United Nations. Or if it had not broken outright and visibly, the fissures opened by the shock of Suez, especially in India, the largest Commonwealth nation, would have deepened, widened and festered.

IT was perfectly clear, moreover, that the Canadian Government and a large part of the Canadian people, if not a large majority, were unwilling to accept automatically a decision, reached without consultation or even notice, in London. The first half of Daffoe's thesis was thus confirmed.

Happily the second half has come into existence in the form of the United Nations, and with sure instinct Mr. Pearson instantly flew to New York, not with some abstract theory, not with lamentation, hand-wringing, breast-beating and vain regrets but with a practical plan.

The Manchester Guardian says that in this act Canada grasped the moral leadership of the Commonwealth but I dare say Mr. Pearson had no time for these historical reflections. He had a job to do and he did it. But he could not have done it, he would have had no way of doing it, without the United Nations where the disagreements in the Commonwealth could be reconciled by an authority much broader than the Commonwealth.

THOSE divisions could be solved, Daffoe hoped, within an authority representing most or all of the world and able to concert the general opinion of mankind. This week we have seen, or begun to see, a classic proof of Daffoe's warning and a practical vindication of his thesis.

Though the United Nations had no immediate military power of its own, not even a squad of soldiers or a single gun, no nation was ready to defy it in the pinch. The joint force of world opinion which Mr. Pearson decided to invoke was, or could shortly become, the greatest force ever known on earth.

In the next few weeks or days we shall see how this mighty experiment, perhaps the most interesting watershed in human history, will work out. But whatever happens on this larger stage, the meaning of events to the Commonwealth, it seems to me, is clear already.

THE Commonwealth remains the most successful feat of international co-operation until the present but it is not large or powerful enough to assure the peace in the contemporary world and its future is now committed as never before to the United Nations.

Canadians who believe in the Commonwealth, especially Canadians who love Britain, should get their minds around that fact, should understand that the present Canadian Government, all partisanship aside, acted exactly as any Canadian Government must have acted, not by accident or caprice but under the compulsion of historic forces, often hidden but long in flow. Many men throughout the Commonwealth have long discerned them but no man articulated them better than Daffoe, a Canadian, and no Canadian statesman has implemented them so ably, up to date, as Mr. Pearson.

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG

Cream Puffs, Watches and Helpless Heroines

IT must seem almost incredible to present-day motorists who whizz over Johnson Street Bridge without looking to right or left that 50 years ago the lower end of Johnson was a place of enchantment to young boys. Right smack down at the end was a sort of cul de sac where Wharf Street with its line of iron-shuttered stone buildings turned suddenly into busy Johnson.

There was a footway down to an old dock from which we could fish for shiners and the odd perch, which found a ready market in Chinatown, but there was no roadway across the bridge.

This was simply a railway trestle with a swing span in the centre to admit larger vessels to the upper harbor. It was possible to walk across the ties but the E & N Railway people didn't encourage the practice.

Thirsty Pilgrims

As you turned away from Wharf Street the first section of lower Johnson held no interest for anyone except the thirsty pilgrims who went through the hospitable swing doors of the old Queens Hotel. Here Store Street gave up the ghost and ended blind, but a few feet up Johnson was a narrow alley, about 10 feet wide, that connected with Yates alongside Simon Leiser's big, sombre wholesale grocery and supply house. A team could just nicely get through the alley, but it was quite impossible for two rigs to pass.

However that was just a point of casual interest and remembered only for what one's imagination could do with the dingy alley.

What drew me down to this enthralling section of the city was a small bakery, a few feet west of the alley. It was owned by a pleasant German, who could bake the most luscious and tempting crullers and coffee cakes. His name was Wille—Mr. Wille—and as far as the small fry was concerned his claim to imperishable fame lay in his concoction of the biggest, fluffiest and creamiest cream puffs you ever saw.

They were a nickel a piece and as big as a prize fighter's fist, and when you bit into them the cream simply oozed out over your face. I think he derived some satisfaction from our evident and visible appreciation of his baking skill.

Almost next door to Mr. Wille's bakery—which incidentally is still in business—was a small jewelry store owned by Mr. Greensfelder, an affable and able merchant who had an exceedingly shrewd estimate of the requirements of his clientele.

With Solid Chains

His window contained the usual assortment of good sturdy (and quite expensive) watches; Hamiltons for the railway men, Elgins and fine Swiss timepieces for discerning buyers, and heavy, silver "turnips" for the loggers. They were usually hitched to good solid chains which were worn across the vest, except for those that were attached to moire silk fobs for the swank young men.

Also in his window were one or more ordinary china plates on which were displayed shiveled, blackish lumps—something like desiccated plums—which seemed somewhat out of place in a jeweler's window.

And do you know what these strange lumps were? They were the dried gall from Alaskan bears and found a ready sale with Mr. Greensfelder's constant Chinese customers, who called them "bear dum" and paid fantastic prices for the stuff.

He told me the Chinese scraped this bear gall into minute particles and combined it with other strange medicaments. He said they had great faith in the therapeutic virtues of their "bear dum"—particularly if Mr. Greensfelder hinted that it came from a huge fierce bear.

Another display that stayed in Mr. Greensfelder's window month after month was one that puzzled me greatly. It was a little velvet stand on which he had four or five real Canadian $5 gold pieces. On the stand was a card lettered like this: "Genuine $5 gold pieces for $1!"

I once asked the little jeweller if he wasn't taking a big chance.

"No," he said, "no one has ever asked to buy one. They think they're fakes. But, mind you, I'd sell one if anyone asked to buy it."

Then there was McCandless Bros.' big emporium of men's wear with heaps of heavy clothing for the woods and stacks of thick long underwear. The brothers—Henry and George—had great faith in Johnson Street, said it would always be a fine retail section, but time told a different tale.

Across the street was Pichon & Lenfesty's sporting goods store—a museum of wonderful rifles and shotguns and a magnet for little boys. Then there was Saunders' elite grocery at the corner of the second alley running through to Yates and a few dogs away was Shotbolt's pharmacy, even then an old establishment.

But these shops had little interest for us.

Balcony Fans

Next to Mr. Wille's bakery, the high point was the old Pantages Theatre, where for a nickel we could hang over the balcony as we breathlessly followed our hero—Broncho Billy. He had a wart on his nose but he could ride; my goodness, he could ride.

As if that were not thrilling enough, we had to sit through the agonies of Pearl White in a serialized, spine-chilling saga of thrills that left the poor, hapless girl each week either suspended over a bottomless precipice or lashed to a saw-table that relentlessly inched its way to a huge bull saw whose whirling teeth would inevitably cut her in two. The agony was to wait a week to see if she escaped.

TV thrillers are only a pale parody on this heady stuff.

Cats Wha Hae

This week, I fear, the heading of this column is definitely a misnomer. Instead of being before the judge, Silenus has been admiring the rain and fog in the hinterland, which is, at the moment, bereft of the judiciary. Consequently, such litigation as there has been has escaped his all-seeing eagle eye, and he is forced to fall back upon talking about himself.

Some days ago, he it known, the final accolade was bestowed on this column by Mr. Harris, of Gordon Head. Silenus, for so many weary centuries forgotten of man, has once more joined the ranks of the immortals. Mr. Harris wrote him a letter commending his incapable efforts, thereby causing great jubilation, and giving him an answer to the rude question "Who reads you anyway?" I can now say Mr. Harris does, and wish him well with all my heart.

The reason for Mr. Harris writing (apart from the general excellence of what appears on Page 5 of a Saturday) was the fact that piece about Dr. (or Mr.) Maggs and his Hamlineque eradication of the Great Queensland Cat Plague. And since National (or perhaps it is International) Cat Week is just drawing to a close, it seems inevitable that something must be said, before it is too late, about our splendid furry friends.

The cat is really a remarkable animal; but when one considers it carefully, there is very little to be said for or about it which everybody does not already know. When faced with the necessity of writing something about the abstract cat, one wishes that one could follow the shining example of the child of 10 who was asked to write about a bird and a beast.

He started off with gay abandon, thus: "The bird I am going to write about is the owl. The owl cannot see at all by day and at night is as blind as a bat. I do not know much about the owl, so I will go on to the beast which I am going to choose. It is the cow..." The rest of the essay has great charm, so much that I wish it was not altogether beside the point to print it here. However, come to think of it, the cat and the owl are old friends, the fact that they went to sea in a pea green boat and got married at the end of the voyage is not pure fiction. But that again is another story.

What is causing me concern is the fact there is afoot a sinister attempt to elbow aside the cat as a worthy object of our affections, and replace it with what are called "facial tissues." For this is not only Cat Week, but Kleenex Week, as all the billboards announce. Now nobody has a higher respect than I for the Kimberley Clark Paper Company, which manufactures this indispensable commodity, but I feel that it showed a lamentable disregard for the legitimate rights of animals when it caused Kleenex Week to pop up in competition with Cat Week. No doubt the directors of Kimberley Clark, in earnest consultation together, inadvertently overlooked the cats in their anxiety to alleviate the sufferings attendant upon the opening of the common cold season. But that makes no difference. Large corporations should permit some interest in the animal kingdom to escape from their vests. I hope Dr. Ballard will take the matter up.

The humble suggestion of this column is that cats should be given a month, not a mere measly week like books, Kleenex or salad. It will then be of small concern whatever week may be going on: cats will be in the forefront of the public mind, and the people will surely become just as conscious of cats as they are of anything else. After all, it should never be forgotten that the cat used to be worshipped in Egypt. Could even be it still is.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Show Business

LONDON—Canadian names making news in show business over here... from Saskatchewan and well known in CBC TV-radio in Toronto, doing fine with fellow Canadian GORDON TANNER in the stage hit "The Rainmaker."

It started in the provinces last March, opened in London in May and capacity business means, it's in for a really long run. McCallum, who started his career as a singer, has the right to two musical shows up his sleeve in one of which he'd like to star when eventually "The Rainmaker" dries up.

REUBEN SHIP, Montrealer, writes the popular comedy series "My Wife's Sister," a half-hour weekly show aired over Britain's commercial TV network. Known in Canada as author of that brilliant radio play "The Investigator," he finds his main problem in writing an English comedy series for English viewers is avoiding Americanisms. The actors anglicize the script for him. Director of the series is another Canadian, HENRY CAPLAN.

MIKE BELL, Belleville-born Torontonian, tells me I got him his first job in England. He had read a piece I did about Charlie Chaplin looking for Canadians to play American parts in his new movie "A King in New York" and the day he arrived in London he phoned Chaplin, got one of the parts. Watch this column for further openings!

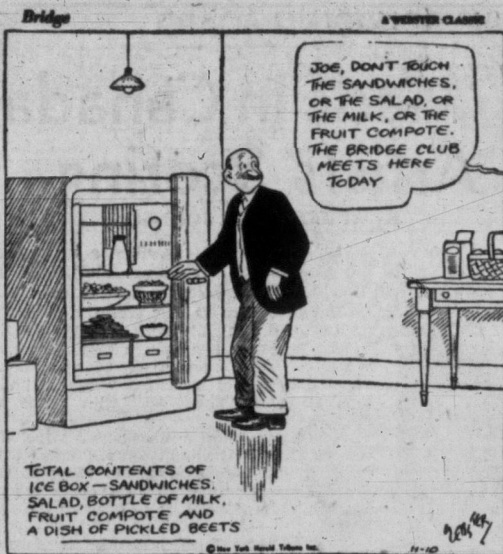

Bell, who is kept busy in radio-TV-movies here, is currently working with BILL NAGY, of Hamilton, on a series of TV dramas. In between whiles Nagy is at work on the new Virginia McKenna movie with a Nova Scotia background, "High Tide at Noon," while wife JANET MacFARLANE rubs shoulders with Joan Crawford on the set of Esther Costello.

TED ALLAN is co-author with English playwright Roger McDougall of comedy-thriller "Double Image," doing well in the provinces and due to reach London next month.

LIONAL MERTON, of Montreal, came over to England with the Canadian Navy Show in 1944 and stayed to do a total—of 50 feature and TV films. The one he's just finished is "Fire Down Below," with Rita Hayworth and Robert Mitchum, and he's currently at work on "Waterpolo," with Anita Ekberg and Victor Mature.

Some pleasant location jaunts have included trips to South America for "Battle of the River Plate," Italy, Berlin and Paris. What does he think of Anita Ekberg? Says Merton: "All the old pros, folks who have been in the business for years such as Gregory Peck and Trevor Howard, are really wonderful people to work with."

SILVIO NARRIZANO, producer for General Motors Theatre in Canada, came over here at beginning of this year under contract for one of the new commercial outlets. After a frustrating time training production staff instead of producing, he produces his first TV play end of this month—"Shooting Star," a play about English soccer!

Crazy for Spending Money?—Wife Only Paid to Find Out

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"My husband said I was crazy, and I wanted to see if I was," Mrs. Portia Allegretti testified in explaining why she spent so much money.

Her husband complained because she ran up $3,100 in bills in three months. She said a good part of them were for visits to a psychiatrist.

Mrs. Allegretti was awarded $250 a month support pending a trial of her divorce suit against Dr. Angelus Allegretti, 47, an osteopathic physician.

BLUFFS, Ill. (AP)—The weekly Bluffs Times announces on page one that its predictions as to what Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson "is going to do for the farmer can be found on pages 2 and 3 and continued on pages 6 and 7." The pages listed are blank.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Jerry

Leonard Fairris, 20, reacted tersely when caught fleeing under gunfire from a $1,500 tourist-court robbery as his car ran out of fuel.

"I sure hope my father doesn't find out I tried to pull a hijacking without enough gas," he told police. "He'd never get over it."

Jerry's father, Iwana Clyde Fairris, is an old pro at hijacking and is serving a life sentence in prison.

His uncle, Hurbie Fairris, has been in prison twice and a year ago faced robbery charges at a time when his son, Hurbie Jr., was electrocuted in Oklahoma for killing a policeman.

Jerry's aunt, Marie Zeglen, the elder Hurbie's first wife, is serving time for killing her third husband. She also killed her second.

His cousin, Bethel Fairris, brother of the executed Hurbie, Jr., is serving time for robbery. Another uncle, Raymond

Uncovers $25,000 in Cash—And There's More, He Says

WEATHERFORD, Tex. (AP)—Dairy farmer Oscar Womack said Friday he found so much money on his farm that "I just got tired of picking it up and quit."

He sent his mother to the First National Bank here with the bills he did gather in. Vice-President Fred Measures said he's certain that some or all of about $25,000 in currency may be good money.

The secret service was telephoned, and the money will be sent to them in Dallas. Womack, 27, arrived at the bank sometime after his mother.

When told that the money may be genuine he promptly left, saying, "Guess I'll go back and pick up some more."

"I've straightened out about $25,000 of it, and there's still more," said Measures.

"There had been an attempt to burn it and it had been rained on and it was muddy. The face of the bills looks good, but the backs look pale, and it may be counterfeit."

The bills all were $100 denomination and some were in bank wrappers denoting $1,000 bundles. There was no identification on the wrappings.

Lions' Club Panelists Debate Tense Situation in Middle East

Thoughtful and interesting views on the Middle East crisis were presented by a six-man panel Friday at the Victoria Lions Club luncheon in the Empress Hotel.

Panelists were Denis Glew, speaking for Britain; Milton King for the United States; Jack Horne for Egypt; George Jones, France; Ted Estlin, Israel, and John Priestley for Canada.

Moderator Lionel O'Neill explained that panel members were not speaking on behalf of themselves, but endeavoring to give what they believed might be the outlook of the countries involved.

Mr. Glew based his arguments concerning Great Britain on the well-known summary of that country as "a nation of shopkeepers." The Suez Canal was the delivery route and the supply route of one vital commodity, oil.

UN GIVEN TIME

"We can't afford to let anybody who may not be friendly have jurisdiction over this route," he said.

Another function of the current UK-French action in Egypt was a blow at Red-inspired domination of Egypt, which was of advantage to all NATO nations. Taking the lead allowed time for the UN to get into action, he said.

Speaking from the U.S. viewpoint, Mr. King said love of country was the main basis of the Middle East trouble, and that round-table discussion was the sensible solution.

"The moment you start shooting it's certainly hard to say when it will stop."

He said the U.S. felt Britain and France had done exactly what Russia hoped they would.

It was "too late" for the UN to act with an international patrol force, which should have been done "years ago."

DIVISION INDICATED

External Affairs Minister Lester Pearson's recent stand has indicated to Russia division in the Commonwealth, which was "ill-advised," he said.

Mr. Horne, speaking on the Egyptian side, termed the country "not warlike in the world sense," despite a recent awakening of Arab nationalism.

Mr. Jones, for France, tracing history of the Suez, said Britain and France had mutually developed Suez and therefore had a strong claim on it.

Mr. Estlin, Israel, referring to when the country was carved out after the war: "I don't think many realized how many Jews would want to go home."

Mr. Priestly said the proposal by Lester Pearson for a world UN force for the Middle East "may save the world from chaos," as thinking could no longer be national, but global for survival.

All present indications point to another 24 to 48 hours of relatively mild weather in most regions of the province with shower activity in coastal areas and cloudy skies over much of the interior.

Will Music Resolve Savagery? Let Artists Try Says Maestro

'Tear-Jerking' Brahms' Third Symphony
To Be Performed on Sunday and Tuesday

This third pair of symphony subscription concerts which takes place tomorrow and Tuesday, not Monday, will bring the season's first of three piano soloists—Marie Aimee Warot—the other two being Robin Wood and Glenn Gould.

It will be under the distinguished direction of Clifford Evans. As for the musical content—well, there is Brahms' Third Symphony in F, which has remained until now only one of the four Brahms symphonies not yet played here. To go out on a limb, may I say that the third is perhaps my favorite.

Here we have an utterance of unspeakable nobility, a work of art as perfect as there exists. Bernard Shaw wrote somewhere that Sarasvati's music in the Magic Flute is the only music he knew that could, without blasphemy, come out of the mouth of God.

It is with complete conviction and absence of flippancy that I say that if God were to conduct a concert, the Third Symphony of Brahms would certainly be included among that select list of works worthy of His attention.

Nor is it out of place to regard it as Brahms' "Eroica." In the first movement, the hero, still young, performs his heroic deeds.

And by the time the symphony has run its course, and we come to the last, quiet F major chord of the finale, it is the listeners who need all the control and courage to keep a straight face, for this music is of such beauty throughout as to be a dangerous tear-jerker.

MUSIC FOR NATIONS

Let this music be played to the assembled delegates at a United Nations session; let it be heard via loudspeakers on the streets of the tormented Middle-East and of tormented Hungary; let it even permeate the stony Kremlin. For through such sounds as these lie the solution and ending to man's inhumanity to man.

LET THE ARTISTS TRY

Politicians and diplomats—even the considerable powers of religion—have failed to stop peoples from doing violence to one another. Let artists try—what more is there to be lost?

Instead of blaring forth propaganda—be it venomous or factual—let media of mass-communication be given over for a while to readings from Shakespeare and Goethe, to productions of Rembrandt on TV, to Bach and Beethoven and the Third Symphony of Brahms.

For they proclaim ageless, universal truths to which no man, of whatever nationality, color or persuasion, can remain immune if but exposed to them.

Vocal Recital To Introduce Newcomers

Much interest is being shown in the forthcoming vocal recital to be held at the Empress Hotel on Tuesday evening, Nov. 20, at 8.30 when the Victoria Musical Art Society will present two newcomers to Victoria in the persons of Margaret Abbott, soprano, and Derek MacDermot, bass-baritone.

Both these artists are well

known on the concert platform in other cities of Canada.

Margaret Abbott, an honor graduate of the Royal Conservatory of Music of Toronto, recently took up residence in Victoria. She served as soloist in Toronto churches for several years and was a member of the CBC Opera Company with which organization she sang numerous roles, principally in the Benjamin Britten operas and Gilbert and Sullivan series.

Mr. MacDermot has had considerable experience in the field of oratorio and opera and is known for his roles in Theatre Under the Stars. Mr. MacDermot came to our city recently and is on the staff of the Oak Bay Junior High School where he is also teaching music to many of the students in his classes.

Box office is now open at the Hudson's Bay Company, the Western Music Co. and Stark Piano Co.

THE SOUNDING BOARD

'Made in Canada' Artists Scoring

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

History of music in Canada inscribes a new page Monday, with the production at Eaton Auditorium in Toronto, of two new operas, believed to be the first written by Canadians and produced in this country.

It is both significant and apt that one should be in the French language and one in English. Harry Somers of Toronto, an already widely-acknowledged composer of merit has written a philosophical piece, "The Fool," with words by Michael Fram.

Montrealer Maurice Blackburn's "Une Mesure de Silence" is a light and airy opera with words by the composer's wife. Head of the Royal Conservatory of Music's opera school, Herman Geiger-Tourel, is to produce the two works.

Cast of "The Fool" is headed by former Victoria baritone, Ernest Adams, now billed

Success Stories Unlimited

Such instances as this premiere are no longer a rarity in this country, however. Almost every day news of some such furthering of Canadian talents and skills in the world of the arts is recorded.

A young woman whose contralto voice has made its mark with audiences and critics wherever she has sung, is Maureen Forrester. Reports tell of her extensive tour of European centres and the enthusiasm with which she has been received and invited to return.

Another Victoria dancer, not so long ago, was specifically chosen by the great Danilova to accompany her on a South African tour. This was Robert Lindgren.

In the face of this sampling of triumphs and departures, it is not to be wondered that one regrets the fact so little of all this "native worth" should be known to the west coast of Canada.

LOOK AT HOME

Such organizations as the IOOE (Malcolm Troup concert), Victoria Symphony (all Canadian soloists), and other local organizations who exploit Canada first when seeking talent, deserve a citation for the service they are rendering.

Maria Callas Sings Casta Diva on Angel

'Norma' in Essence—Pianist's Encores
Capsule Coverage—Pops Selections

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Vincenzo Bellini, one of the great names of early 19th century Italian opera, is chiefly remembered today for his "Norma" and "I Puritani." Norma was revived with success in London in 1952 and this year in New York, which goes to show if a work has merit it is certain to re-appear in the repertoire, sometime or another.

A fine performance of the highlights of Norma is now presented by the famous Scala Opera Company on a new Angel disc (35379), complete with libretto. If you like Italian opera this record is good entertainment and will also permit you to compare Bellini's style with Verdi's operas which appeared later.

Verdi is regarded by some people as Bellini's successor. The chief feature of the disc is Maria Callas singing "Casta Diva," the lyric prayer to the moon goddess—it's excellent. The singer is supported by an impressive cast composed of Mario Filippeschi, tenor; Ebe Stigantini, mezzo-soprano; Nicola Rossi-Lemeni, bass, and Rina Cavalaria, soprano.

Angel has come up with another fine disc—"Malczynski Encores" (35342) which contains familiar and unfamiliar piano pieces of famous composers. This record is certain to prove popular with those who favor the piano.

Malczynski here plays works of Chopin, Debussy, Rachmaninoff and Szymanowski. He also plays the Prokofiev modern masterpiece, "Marche," from the "Love of Three Oranges."

The pieces are played with style and feeling, but the works which I found most interesting were two etudes by Alexander Scriabin, a Russian composer who died in 1915. They are unfamiliar, but once you have heard them, my prediction is that you will want to hear more of this composer's piano works.

New disc which should interest music lovers is a Columbia Records release of three pocket 12-inch L.P. albums comprising classical, listening and dancing, show music and jazz. Each album features recordings in such a manner as to give the listener to these basic library albums a capsule history of music under the four classifications.

Enclosed in each album is a brochure covering the recorded music.

By HENRY GRIS

LONDON (UP)—Surrounded by secrecy becoming the atomic age, the Marilyn Monroe—Sir Laurence Olivier movie, "The Sleeping Prince," is slowly nearing completion at the rustic and appropriately hidden Pinewood Studios, 21 miles west of London.

Never in the history of motion pictures have so many signs been set up warning one to stay away as on the fringes of the studio space occupied by the Sir Laurence Olivier company.

A burly ex-serviceman guards the door of dressing room No. 91 as though the narrow door from the hall leads at least to No. 10 Downing Street.

It's Marilyn's, of course. Her name is not on the door, obviously to help mislead the possible intruder. The dressing room is bare and devoid of flowers with the exception of a vase with a few dainty orchids. Nobody in his right mind will identify the drab rooms with Marilyn Monroe. Part of the camouflage, of course.

Olivier's flower-filled dressing room diagonally across is guarded as zealously. The same goes double for the sound stage where they began filming "The Sleeping Prince" early in August. One is advised in no uncertain terms that no newspaperman has crossed the threshold of Stage A and that this reporter's private audience with Sir Laurence in his dressing room during a break in production should be regarded as a world scoop.

Opinions Are Various On Color Imprimature

This is the second part of a two-part article by Mr. Savery on methods of priming and laying in grounds. First part appeared on these pages last Saturday.

Let us briefly examine the has found that strongly tinted use of colored grounds as op- yellow priming imparts a type posed to the use of plain white. of radiance to thinly applied

The writer at various times dark color passages. The Old Masters of painting made a practice of tinting white lead with yellow lake and we compared with one tinted in by neutral grey, brown or yellow.

If we use brighter color for the ground the whole tonality of the painting must be carefully considered. As a general rule it is more effective to use contrasting color schemes between the ground and the over painting, viz.: cool color over a warm tone although there is nothing against the painting of warm color on warm color or cold color on cool hues to produce painterly effects.

Contrary to the general opinion red grounds do not always lower the tonality of a painting as will be seen in the works of both Goya and Rubens who painted, especially in the case of the first master, exclusively on such a ground which was very favorable to the technique of scrambling to which the artist was prone for various effects.

SAND ROUGH SURFACE
Vermilion is perhaps the red most useful and suitable for priming for it requires little oil as it produces a lean paint, but one of great luminosity. Having a rather horny rough surface on drying one must sand well to bring the texture to a suitable painting quality.

Yellow, the favored ground of the Flemish masters, strongly affects the over-painting tones tending to produce glowing effects in the warm colors and bright sunny greens from transparent blues. In fact, the writer

Music Went 'Round ... Valve Came Out

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP)—Roger Bobo, a tuba player in the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra, got a rousing cheer at a concert Thursday night. A valve fell out of his tuba in the middle of "Cavendish" by Respighi, and at the end of the piece guest conductor Victor Alessandro of the San Antonio, Tex. orchestra turned to the audience to announce a three-minute delay while the tuba was repaired.

Commercials on next year's telecast of the Academy Awards presentation will be toned down considerably from last year. The Academy and the auto sponsor have agreed they will eliminate "irritating" commercials from the March 27 show. Nominations for the awards will be made in February and will not be televised.

BOOK TALK

By JAMES SCOTT

Jingle Bells Sounding Along Publishers' Row

Harbingers of headaches, writer's cramp, tender ribs, sore feet and 37 more shopping days before Christmas are beginning to appear along Book Row. Each year the trade produces a certain number of books which are frankly designed to appeal to the frantic Christmas shopper. Quite often these are very good books too.

They fall into three main categories: 1, the book which has Jolly Old St. Nick on the dust jacket and is blatantly about Christmas or some phase of it; 2, the very, very fancy picture book, usually cartoons, produced on the theory I suppose, that even if you're not sure the recipient of your book can read he at least will enjoy the pictures; and 3, the obvious best-seller, the book everybody will soon be talking about and maybe even reading.

All three categories are represented in this week's talk. Edward Streeter's Merry Christmas, Mr. Baxter is Christmas-shopper bait if I ever saw it right from the title and the raincoat on the cover. Look which is what I would expect from the author of Father of the Bride, Mr. Hobbs' Vacation, etc.

This May Start You Worrying

This one is about the pre-Christmas vicissitudes of a New Yorker's father and grandfather. It is a satire, just corny enough, and just accurate enough to provide a humorous reading.

Perhaps it is a better book to read after Christmas than before because what it did for me was cause a couple of sleepless nights worrying about the Christmas headache which I know will come any time now. This was not the author's intention but he was just close enough to what actually happens in this domicile anyway to put the fear of last-minute shopping into my bones.

COOK'S TOUR BACKSTAGE

Nova Scotia Dancer In Folies Bergeres

LES GIRLS, by Constance Tomkinson, with drawings by David Knight. Toronto: Little, Brown & Co. 274 pp. What could be more unlikely than a Canadian minister's daughter in the chorus of the Folies Bergeres? Yet this is the basis of the autobiography of Constance Tomkinson, whose wise and witty book has already aroused some critical huzzahs in the U.S.

The locale is prewar Europe. "Tommy," as she calls herself, is a Nova-Scotian girl who had studied the dance under Martha Graham. Stage-struck, she left for England in the hope of getting a part on the West End boards. She ended up touring the capitals of Europe as a dancer, fighting off wolves in a variety of languages.

SURPRISES ALL ROUND
A member of the Millerettes, the Folies, and later "Basil's Beauties," she found—somewhat to her surprise—that her sister chorines were all British girls.

She liked them, and they liked her, though a bit dubious about her penchant for boning up on languages and carrying bits of bric-a-brac around the Continent in her luggage.

En route, "Tommy" recorded some shrewd and hilarious observations. She fell in love with a German sculptor, repelled swarms of amorous Italians, and contrived to dissuade a precise Dutchman with stories of her inability to cook, make dresses, or clean house.

Miss Tomkinson tells her tale with vast charm and a becoming modesty. As a Cook's Tour of

STAMP CORNER

BY REG NAIRNE

"Unused" Canadian stamps of the 20c, 50c and $1 values have been offered from G.B. which are in reality cleaned used copies, re-gummed with a very white gum. These are no doubt specimens that have originally been cancelled with rubber stamps using violet, blue or green inks, instead of the standard black ink in general use. The colored inks are comparatively easily washed out with a chemical bleach.

Luckily re-gummed stamps are fairly easy to spot, as the gum always oozes up slightly onto the edges of the perforations. Mint stamps as bought at the post office are perforated after gumming so that the gum is cleanly cut by the perforating pins. Also, no re-gumming job ever has quite the same pristine appearance that you see on a new stamp.

As a final test there is always the ultra-violet light, which will show up the original cancellation on a cleaned stamp regardless of how immaculate it may appear to the eye.

It has also been reported that the 50-cent "Oil Well" stamp has been seen with the "G" overprint forged. This would be not too difficult to do, for many of the genuinely overprinted stamps show such variations that some of them might easily be taken for forgeries.

Early printings show a sharp clearly defined initial whereas later impressions show the letter in thick blunt type which looks as if it came from a different font.

Philatelists were beginning to collect these as separate varieties, but the post office department has furnished the information that the thick "G" is simply due to wear or over-inking. (These differences may be seen on all values—not only on the 50 cents of course.)

From Fact to Fiction Successful Transition

THE FLOOD, by Scott Young. Toronto: McClelland & Stewart Ltd. 223 pps. $3.50.

Scott Young, one of Canada's ablest young "fact writers," turned five years ago to fiction with the production of two "juveniles" based on hockey. Now he has reached another plateau in his development as a novelist with publication of "The Flood."

Evidence of both facets of the writer's talent are to be found in the new book. Mr. Young depends on his reporter's training for the facts of his story, but tells them against a romantic conflict in human relations, the mark of the fictioneer.

This is in actual fact an eye-witness story. Mr. Young went out to his old home town from the unlikely habitat of Omemee, Ont., to see the 1950 inundation. He ended up writing special dispatches for eastern publications and, incidentally, tossed sandbags as any patriotic Manitoban would do.

INCREASES STATURE

The result is an authentic and highly-readable book which will add to Scott Young's stature as a growing Canadian novelist.

The natural and human elements remain in conflict throughout the story. Mr. Young has chosen to tell it in terms of Martin Stewart, a young public-relations man, recently widowed, and the father of two appealing youngsters, Don and Mac.

Martin flies back from Edmonton when the water starts to rise. "A river was flooding," Mr. Young writes, "and a dike was needed to contain it, and man was back to an ancient simplicity he could not resist."

Working on the dike, Martin comes face-to-face once again with his first love, Martha Matheson, who has married the boss' son. With Martha is Elaine, a young sister-in-law who has come from Toronto for a visit and enters into the crisis.

Desperately lonely, and somewhat adrift from his son Don, Martin is caught up in a moral problem which engulfs him just as surely as the flood threatens to engulf the city.

Plywood Combination Wall Improves Hi-Fi Acoustics

One of the two invaluable aids of hardwood plywood in hi-fi vibration, thereby aiding sound sets is made quite obvious in this glamorous custom installation—the furniture-like quality of the material. To fit the hi-fi into the home, hardwoods such as are used in making 85 per cent of all wood furniture are top choice, in line with the dominant feeling that the set should look good as well as sound good. The other aid of hardwood plywood lies in the material's unusual rigidity, which minimizes reproduction. This is especially important in the baffles of speakers and the sound chamber itself. The set shown is made of mahogany plywood. It contains the TV set, tape recorder and storage for books and records as well as the hi-fi components. Hi-fi installations range from a swank "entertainment wall" such as this down to a TV-sized cabinet.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Power Tools Will Reward Care With Good Service Next Season

By JACK BEASTALL

Neither chemistry, science, nor mechanics is out of place in today's gardening column because of the important role each plays in everyday gardening.

This weekend we should give some thought to the one-cylinder gasoline engine which has eased our labors by supplying the power to cut the lawn, cultivate the vegetable rows, or till the soil.

These powerful little engines do a mighty job, and most of us will agree they have served us well during the past season. Like many other mechanical devices, they deteriorate more rapidly in storage than in service, unless we spend a little time fixing them for their winter rest.

Each power tool has a booklet on engine care with specific instructions on conditioning for winter storage. It pays to follow these instructions.

Whether decarbonizing and a valve grind are necessary or not must be decided by the owner or a competent mechanic.

If the engine is not to be pulled down for inspection, remove the spark plug and pour about one ounce of light engine oil (same as used in crankcase) into the cylinder.

The oil will keep the rings free and a protective film over the cylinder walls.

DRAIN FUEL

An important detail which is often overlooked is the complete draining of the fuel system. Failing to do this cost me several days work and many dollars before the engine again purged its reassuring and happy song.

The leaded gasolines in use today leave a gum deposit as they age. This gum clogs the minute passages in the fuel system and makes starting impossible after a few months out of service.

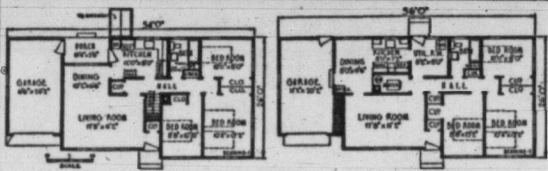

Draining the fuel tank and running the engine until it stops from lack of fuel is the usual procedure, but I prefer to see that every drop of gasoline is out of the passages and jets by blowing through them with a hand pump.

When the engine is not taken apart, it pays to squirt a little light oil over the valve stems as these tend to stick when the engine is not used for a period.

These details apply to four-stroke engines in particular and some will also apply to two-stroke engines.

The important point is to follow the manufacturer's instructions for your particular engine, and thus make sure it will be raring to go when you get that gardening urge in the spring.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

Peonies Refuse To Bloom If Crowns Are Smothered

By JACK BEASTALL

Q.—I have taken over a garden in which there are several large clumps of peonies. The foliage is plentiful but neighbors tell me they do not bloom. Do they require lifting and dividing, fertilizing, or what should be done to make them flower?—F. H., Victoria West.

A.—The peony is one of the few perennials which may be left undisturbed for 30 or more years and will still give a good display. The common cause of failure to bloom is too much soil over the crowns. Two inches covering is about right. Suggest you carefully remove the soil and determine how deep the crowns are. If too deep, dig and replant about end of next August. Bonemeal may be applied now, worked into the soil around the plants.

Q.—When should cyclamen seed be sown to have plants in flower by Christmas?—W. J., Fairfield.

A.—The seed of the Persian cyclamen for flowering indoors is sown in a heated greenhouse from mid-July to mid-October. The plants will flower 14 to 16 months later.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Attend to planting of trees and shrubs—evergreen, conifer and shrubs—evergreen, conifer. Stake and tie above plants securely for first winter at least, and plant firmly to prevent loosening by frost, wind and excessive rains.

Dig gladioli and acidantha (Abyssinian-lily). Dry the corns quickly in warm room. Then store at about 45-50 deg. F. Chrysanthemums outdoors which have finished flowering should be cut down to within six inches of base. Choice varieties should be dug and packed closely together in a cold frame or cold greenhouse to furnish early cuttings in February for next year's plants.

Plant Anemone coronaria, the poppy anemone, for late spring and early summer color.

Late flowering border chrysanthemums may be dug, when in bud, and replanted in the ground bed of a cold greenhouse, or into large pots. Water well, and give plenty of air.

Winter flowering begonias in pots and poinsettias need a night temperature of 60 deg. F.

and careful watering and feed. Black currant cuttings may be rooted outdoors by inserting one-foot-long growths half way into fine sandy soil. Leave for winter, plant out in spring.

Pot a root of mint and of parsley. Keep in cold frame for a while, then bring into sunny window for use in winter.

Hardwood Ply Is Modern Trend For Interiors

A strong trend to use of quality materials and individual interiors was a major result of nation held "open house" in which "builders all across the nation held "open house in model homes for the public.

Many builders seem agreed that wise use of natural hardwoods is the best way to achieve the style and individuality so much in demand in home interiors nowadays. Often, this took the form of hardwood plywood wall paneling used as an accent wall or two in the living room.

Essential Do-It-Now Chores Prepare for Winter Storms

By MR. FIX

Now is the time for all good home handymen to complete the little jobs they've been putting off the past few months.

Many of the chores are warm-weather do-it items as well as things the northern homeowner should do to put his house and belongings in order for the winter.

Take, for instance, the matter of caulking around window frames.

It isn't the cold air alone you'd like to keep out of the house—moisture is the real villain that creeps through such crevices. Now's the time to caulk above windows and along sides of window frames where they butt with the siding. Apply caulking compound with steady, even pressure of caulking gun and remove any gobby excess with a putty knife.

CAULKING

If cracks or other openings are wide and deep, you may need to plug them with some type of packing material—perhaps oakum. And caulking material can be smoothed into small cracks in siding with a putty knife.

If you plan to do your caulking on a chilly day, warm cartridge of caulking compound on a radiator, register or in a pall of hot water for a few minutes—and then work fast. In fact, if you must do the job in cold weather it's a good idea to have two guns, and have one warming while the other is being used, as caulking compound stiffens rapidly in cold weather.

RAILINGS

If you have iron stair, porch or patio railings, or if you're leaving iron furniture out all winter long, now's the time to check for rust spots. Sand, burnish with steel wool and then touch up with a paint suitable for use on iron work. Your best bet, if you have time, is to repaint completely the iron work in question.

Have you drained water pipes which lead to the outside of the house? Chances are no damage has been done—yet—if you forgot, but don't put off the job any longer.

Turn off shut-off valve which you'll find somewhere along the pipe leading to each outdoor faucet. Hang a bucket or large can from water pipe directly under this valve and open small knurled drain plug. Then, open outside faucet part way. After all water has drained from pipe between faucet and shut-off valve, close drain plug, but leave outside faucet open a crack just in case your shut-off valve leaks. If water should continue to flow, an open connection will prevent pipe from freezing and splitting near faucet.

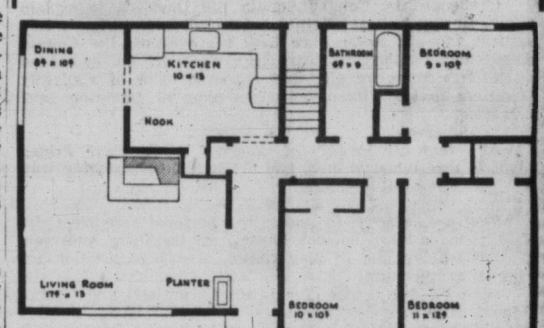

Service all motor-driven appliances according to manufacturer's instructions and be sure to drain fuel tanks, especially if you're storing mowers and tillers in the basement. Don't bring supplies of gasoline into the house for storage. If you have no outside place away from the house in which to keep it, get rid of it.

It's cheaper to buy a few dollars' worth of gas next spring than to pay for a new home to replace one destroyed by fire. Empty bird baths and bring ornamental globes inside unless you're fond of replacing these not inexpensive items each spring.

These are but a few "to-dos" which should be accomplished before the advent of winter. They'll probably suggest other things you want to do in the near future.

Referee Vern Buffey, one of the new crop of Western Hockey League whistle-blowers, will do better things with his job as soon as he quits being trigger-happy.

Actually, Buffey appears to have the makings of a capable official except that he is trying too hard to establish the reputation of a hardrock.

Inclined to make snap decisions, Buffey left a bad impression here in that recent debacle against Winnipeg.

Challenged by Cougar captain Bill Davidson to explain a call, Buffey became slightly red-necked and, during a subsequent face-off, never once took his eyes off the Cougar defenceman. On the first rush after the face-off, Buffey handed Davidson a minor penalty that appeared to be of a slightly vindictive nature. His obvious glowering at Davidson gave him away.

All that can be said of Cougars' "power-play" Friday night is that it would have had a tough time matching voltage with a one-cell flashlight.

Few people seem to realize the personal sacrifice Colin Kilburn made when he took himself off the Doug Anderson Doug Macauley line to play centre, a strange position for him, on another unit.

With all due respect for Bruce Carmichael and George Ranieri, Kilburn's new linemates, Colin isn't likely to come near his point total of last season but when he felt the shift would be in the best interests of the club, he did not hesitate.

There has been a lingering thought here that the local Navy Band can stack up with anything heard at last year's Grey Cup game. And, one thing leading to another, we feel that the committees in charge of promoting happiness, at both the Grey Cup and Shrine games could do well to offer an invitation to the band.

Winners of 38 straight games or not, the University of Oklahoma Sooners are as dull as dishwater to watch on TV. Completely unemotional and dispassionate to the point of automation, the Sooners fit the apt tag of "The Bland Butchers" hung on them by a Sports Illustrated writer. As far as spectator appeal is concerned, Oklahoma's own perfection is their undoing.

OLYMPIC COLD-SHOULDER

Hungarian Team Snubs Russians

MELBOURNE (AP)—Hungary's Olympic team received a tumultuous welcome today while at nearby Puckpynal Mervyn Lincoln turned in a 4.04.8 mile in the feature of a pre-Olympic track carnival.

These were the latest developments on the Olympic scene with the opening of the games on Nov. 22 less than two weeks away.

The Hungarian athletes, many of whom fought against the Russians in the rebellion, were the centre of attraction on their arrival at Essendon airport.

More than 1,000 persons, including a small group of Russians, were on hand, but the Russians were completely snubbed.

Most in the crowd were Hungarians who came to Australia years ago. They wore the Hungarian colors of red, white and green with a mourning stripe of black and yelled the Hungarian war cry of "hooy hooy hoohah."

Tears flowed down the cheeks of the athletes, some of them also wearing mourning stripes, as the crowd sang Hungary's national anthem.

The Russian contingent, headed by Mikhail Pesliak, village commandant, and Peter Sobolev, Soviet Olympic attaché, were present to join in the greeting, but they were completely ignored by the Hungarians, including Hungary's own chief of mission, Arpad Csanday.

The Hungarian athletes declined to talk politics or to tell of their recent experiences, apparently because they feared for the safety of relatives at home.

But in greeting old friends they left no doubt about their feeling for the Russians.

Lincoln won the mile by 20 yards in the pre-Olympic competition at Puckpynal, 65 miles from Melbourne, as the favorite, Jim Bailey, of Australia, and England's Chris Chataway came in 3rd and 4th. New Zealand's Murray Halberg finished second.

The competition lost some of its lustre because of the absence of the U.S. and Russian teams and also because John Landy, holder of the world mile record, did not compete.

Overtime Vogue

Two of three games went into overtime while the third was a walkaway for the winners in amateur league hockey in the west Friday night.

In the Western International Hockey League, Spokane Flyers took a 5-4 victory over Rossland Warriors after six minutes of sudden death overtime.

In the Okanagan Senior Hockey League Vernon Canadians and Penticton V's played to a 5-5 draw in overtime. But the Kelowna Packers scored a 5-1 decision over Kamloops Chiefs and were never headed.

Lorne Nadeau was the hero for Spokane scoring the overtime goal and one other in a game that gave Flyers a two-game edge in the WHL over Nelson. Andy Drobot scored the two Flyer goals and the other came from Frank Kubasek.

Drakes Hog City Grid All-Stars

Oak Bay Drakes, Victoria Intermediate Canadian Football Union champions, placed seven members on the all-star team picked today by a joint panel of team coaches and sports writers.

Three of the 12 players selected won recognition at their positions on all seven ballots. Tom Sanregret of Drakes was unanimous as quarterback, as was Charlie Bishop of Vampires at halfback and Ricky Ginn of Drakes at fullback. Gerry Porter of Navy also appeared on all ballots, receiving four votes as a halfback and three as a fullback.

All-star team follows:

Quarterback—Tom Sanregret, Drakes. A former Edmonton junior, Sanregret is equally an outstanding ball-handler and passer. First year with club, led Drakes to league title with only one loss en route.

Fullback—Ricky Ginn, Drakes. Leading ground-gainer and leading scorer in league, he is the powerhouse of Drakes' twin-fullback offence.

Halfbacks—Charlie Bishop, Vampires. Outstanding runner, excelled with last-place club. Gerry Porter, Navy. Hard-plunging all-around player, who can run wide, catch passes, and also play defence. Gordie Hemmingsway, Drakes, good, fast, breakaway runner. Showed well in playoffs.

Centre—Pop Reeves, Navy. Almost a unanimous choice. A 60-minute, two-way man for the sailors.

Guards—Harry Turner, Drakes. Veteran, one of the hardest men to move out of position in the league. Ed Amos, Navy. One of Navy bullwarks. Makes a lot of tackles.

Tackles—Joe Kurylo, Drakes. Despite bad shoulder, top stopgap in league, hard to fool. Doug Brown, Navy. Best kicker in league, also relentless two-way lineman.

Ends—Pete Turko, Drakes. Converted from halfback to brilliant pass-catching end. Ron Young, Navy. His pass-catching made the tars' aerial offence always dangerous.

Voting results follow:

Fullback—Ricky Ginn, Drakes, 7; Gerry Porter, Navy, 3; Ted Koska, Drakes, 2.

Centre—Pop Reeves, Navy, 6; Dick Irving, Drakes, 1.

The Thunderbirds were without star players John McLeod and Ed Wilde.

Riders Rehired Frank Filchok

REGINA (CP)—Coaches Frank Filchok and Jack Russell of the Saskatchewan Roughriders have been rehired to guide the destinies of the Western Interprovincial Football Union club for the 1957 season, club president Don McPherson announced today.

The announcement came only a few hours before Riders were to take to the field here against Edmonton Eskimos in the first game of the best-of-three Western final to decide the team that will play in the Grey Cup game against the eastern champions.

Next year will mark Filchok's fifth season as Riders' coach, an unprecedented term of office in modern professional football in the West where coaches come and go like falling autumn leaves. Russell will be going into his second season as line coach.

"The club is very happy to have Filchok and Russell back again," McPherson said. "We know the fans will be pleased as well. Frank is very popular throughout the province and his expert coaching ability is recognized across the country. Jack has done a great job with the line this year. We feel we are extremely fortunate in having two coaches of such high calibre."

Contract terms were not disclosed, in keeping with the policy of the club.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"Babe" McCoy was my boss man," said ex-fighter Watson Jones. "He gave me back what he thought I should have. I don't remember how much it was, but it was lots less than half."

Jones, testifying Friday at a California Athletic Commission hearing, also said that McCoy, former Olympic Auditorium matchmaker, instructed him to take a dive in three fights.

Under cross-examination by McCoy's lawyer, Jones said he never kept records, never knew how much money was coming, and that he borrowed money from McCoy and the Olympic management between 1945-50.

Outhustled Cats Lose; Defensive Errors Hurt

Seattle 4, Victoria 0

By DENNY BOYD

Seattle Americans, everything they were said to be, did everything they had to do and went home with all the points they came to get Friday at Memorial Arena.

The Americans roared into Victoria with the force and fury of a whirlwind and blew out with a 4-0 victory over the Victoria Cougars, leaving behind them a slightly-dazed Cougar club and the firm conviction that there is no fluke attached to Seattle's first place standing in the coast division of the Western Hockey League.

Billed as a hard-scoring, hustling club, the Americans proved the value of advertising as they skated the Cougars right out of the rink and into a corner slightly below Blanshard Street.

To a man, the Americans checked the Cougars as if they were being paid by the hour and this checking, combined with the fact that the Cougars floundered in their over-anxiety, gave the Americans a victory that was as deserved as it was clean cut.

Cougar coach Colin Kilburn, paying full tribute to the spirit Seattle coach Keith Allen has installed in the Americans, commented ruefully after the game, "They checked us as if we were in first place and this was their rink. They didn't give us a smell of the puck."

Americans' fly-paper checking kept the Cougar wingers bottled up tighter than museum specimens.

Emile Pounces on First Shutout
The scattered Cougar sorties that managed to slip through the lines ran smack dab into Emile "The Cat" Francis, who did everything to justify his nickname except meow and lap up milk. In earning his first shutout of the season, Francis was a lunging pouncing master.

Cougar goalie Marcel Pelletier didn't complain after the game. He just said, "At least we'll be well rested for Saturday's game."

But Pelletier didn't deserve four goals against his average. The first goal came on a screened shot, the next two on defensive mistakes by Wayne Brown and the fourth was scored while the Cougars were checking everyone but the man with the puck.

Rouandy outdone in their home diggings, Cougars tonight face the not-too-tasty proposition of salvaging a split in the home-and-home series as they travel to Seattle. Kilburn plans only one line-up change, Roy Partridge returning to the line-up in place of either Larry Leach or Don Chiupka.

Americans were off and running as early as 5:01 of the first period when Max Sturzen was set up by George Senick and Lionel Repka, coasted in over the Cougar blue-line and let fly with a shot that flitted between two players and was past Pelletier before he could draw a bead on it.

Amerks Rip It Open in Third
It was still a hockey game after that goal and Francis made two handsome contributions to his shutout when he slid out to smother a point-blank shot from Bob Beckett at 12 minutes and slithered to toe away a wicked long shot by Brown.

The second period was scoreless, Pelletier making the stop of the period on Ed Dorohoy's close-in slap shot.

The Amerks, never relaxing for a minute, tore it wide open in the third period as they hammered three more nails into Cougars' cross.

League-leading scorer Guyile Felder fed Ray Kinasevich from a face-off in the Seattle zone, and when Brown let Kinasevich get around him at the blue-line, the former Edmonton forward was in the clear for the goal that made it 2-0.

Vai Fonteyne made it 3-0 at 14:17 on a goal that was pure charity. Brown made a desultory pass-out from behind his own goal that homed in perfectly to the stick of the surprised Fonteyne, who recovered quickly enough to do what was expected of him.

It was Kinasevich from Felder again at 17:35, Kinasevich being allowed to skate in on Pelletier without receiving so much as a stern look from the Cougars.

Whatta You Know---Laycoe Was Right

By The Canadian Press

Before Friday night's Western Hockey League game with Vancouver Canucks, coach Hal Laycoe of New Westminster Royals said his team would lose. He was right.

Royals were tired out from four games in seven nights and though they kept step with Canucks for two periods they fell apart in the third and lost 6-2.

ON LOSING STREAK
In Edmonton, Calgary took its ninth straight loss, 4-3. The Stampers are tied with New Westminster for third place among the eight teams in the WHL. Each has 15 points.

Brandon, topping the Prairie division but one point behind Seattle, stayed at 17 points as Winnipeg Warriors came from behind to edge them 3-2.

In Vancouver, Jackie McLeod helped justify Laycoe's pessimism by firing in two Canucks goals. Gordie Pennell, Rag Raglan, Syd Lamoureux and Mott McLean scored the others.

Royals' goalkeepers were Max McNabb and Arlo Goodwin.

OLYMPIC SWIMMERS OFF FOR MELBOURNE . . .

Potentiality in Every Event—Coach Walker

Canada's Olympic swimmers, who will bid an official farewell to Victoria in an exhibition gala with the city's YMCA club at the Crystal Garden tonight, will be the best prepared squad ever to represent the Dominion in an Olympiad.

Tommy Walker, the soft-spoken Toronto coach who coaches the team, warns "there is still a lot more work to do" when the squad reaches Australia for a final two weeks of training before the Games but says the sessions in Victoria have given the Melbourne-bound athletes an advantage no other group of Canadian swimmers has ever had.

"The training we have had in Victoria has helped tremendously," he told the Times today. "I've seen improvements all around and the swimmers have adjusted themselves here, which is something that would have taken more time in Australia."

"This has been a good two weeks of co-ordinating our efforts as a team," the veteran coach stated. "The few little problems that remain can only be solved by the individuals concerned."

"If they don't realize their responsibilities to their club and to Canada while they are here, they never will."

He describes arrangements made for the team in Victoria by manager Dr. Paul Hauch, of London, Ont., and Victoria's Archie McKinnon as almost perfect.

"Although he is convinced that this is the best of all Canada's Olympic swim teams, with 'potentialities in every event entered," Walker won't be asking his athletes for any record-breaking efforts to-night. "Our training is pointed at peak performances at Melbourne," he stated, then added, "but there may be some good times."

One of the Olympians who might come up with an outstanding performance tonight is big George Park, the national sprint champion from Hamilton, Park, who has defeated two of the three U.S. entrants in the Olympic 100-metres freestyle during the past year, has trimmed off six pounds to 192.

Vancouver's Bill Slater was not quite as successful in his weight battle. The 16-year-old entrant in the 400 and 1,500 metres freestyle has missed his target of 165 by a couple of pounds but has shown a big improvement over the shorter distance.

A great future is predicted for the hard-working youngster, holder of three Canadian records, and Walker believes he may be ready to break the 19-minute mark that was good for sixth place in the 1,500 metres at the 1952 Games. If he can get down around 18 minutes, he might get into the finals at Melbourne.

If present Olympic marks could be expected to stand up under the onslaught in Australia, Walker, who expects new records to be set in every event, might be persuaded to predict a gold medal for his squad.

As it is, he will only say of his charges, "not one will concede anything at Melbourne, they'll have to be beaten in the water."

The 400 metres relay team, comprised of the only four Canadian women ever to break one minute at 100 yards—Helen Stewart, Vancouver; Ginny Grant, Toronto; Sara Barber, Brantford, and Gladys Priestley of Montreal—still appear the team's brightest prospect.

The team bettered a world record in an exhibition appearance at the HMCS Naden pool Wednesday and if each of the four can improve slightly on her best effort to date, they could be right in the battle for an Olympic victory.

Miss Stewart recently topped the world short-pool record for 100 yards with a 57.6-second effort at Vancouver while Miss Grant was just above the long-pool mark with a 58.6 timing at Toronto.

Miss Priestley, considerably improved since she was a close runner-up to Australia's record-smashing Lorraine Crapp in the 1954 British Empire Games, will enter the 400 metres freestyle along with Montreal's Beth Whittall, a double winner at the 1955 Pan American Games who will also compete in the 100 metres butterfly event.

Miss Barber and PAG champion Lenora Fisher of Ocean Falls will carry the team's hopes in backstroke events.

While carefully avoiding any predictions as the team heads into the final stages of the training grind, Walker is convinced that "this team can do more for swimming in Canada than any other group that has represented the country."

Lodger Tossed Acid in Her Face
Sweepstake Winner Tells Court

(From Times News Services)
VANCOUVER — Mrs. Helen Orsolets, winner of a $140,000 sweepstake, told an assize court jury Friday that a lodger threw acid in her face when she refused to give him $35,000 of her winnings.

The lodger, John Babich, 61-year-old cement finisher, has pleaded not guilty to a charge of causing bodily harm with intent to maim his former landlady.

Mrs. Orsolets, 43, told the court Babich lent her $3,500 to buy a house. After she won the sweepstake she asked him to leave the house.

"I asked him how much he wanted to move and he said $35,000 and this house."

"He began talking to me in a temper saying: 'You not bring me to court house, you not bring police; I finish you, I bring you to heaven.'"

Mrs. Orsolets testified: "This is what he did. He threw something in my face from a water glass."

She said she poured milk over her face and ran to a neighbor's place.

Medical evidence indicated that she had been burned on the left side of the head, face, neck, and shoulders. All the burns had healed but scars remained on her shoulder and arm. The hearing is continuing.

SUMMERLAND — John Hilton Cross, 25, of Rutland, was killed Friday night when a car he was driving went over a 1,000-foot embankment seven miles north of here on Highway 97.

CAR RAMS GAS PUMPS

BURNABY — Damage estimated at between $3,000 and $5,000 was caused early Friday when a car crashed into two gasoline pumps at a service station here.

One pump was knocked 20 feet by the impact and the other was wrapped around the frame of the pump island. Ignited gasoline sent flames 30 feet in the air but firemen soon extinguished the blaze.

Police arrested James Catt on a charge of driving while impaired.

PROTEST BRIDGE TOLLS

CHILLIWACK — Truck and bus line operators are protesting that the tolls charged on British Columbia's new Agassiz-Rosedale bridge are too high.

The ferry service, which ended with completion of the bridge, charged 40 cents. Now the charge is $2.

The Fraser Valley Milk Producers' Association has joined the truckers and bus line operators in the protest, and a petition asking for lower truck rates is being circulated among Agassiz dairy farmers.

CLOVERDALE — Laura Mary Duke, 40, was remanded for a week Thursday on a charge of infanticide and concealing the body of a dead baby found in a ravine near White Rock Sunday.

VANCOUVER — Damages totalling $12,000 were paid to the victims of a July 3 traffic collision here under a settlement disclosed in Supreme Court Friday.

The crash took the life of Thomas Boucher and injured George C. Warner and James Wood. Their car collided with one owned by Laverne Lewis and driven by Thomas Wilkie. It was learned that Lewis and Wilkie have agreed to pay $5,000 to Boucher's widow and four-year-old daughter, $4,000 to Warner and $3,000 to Wood.

DISABLED MINER'S PENSION BID
REJECTED BY COURT DECISION

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mr. Justice Arthur Lord supported in Supreme Court Friday an application by the Workmen's Compensation Board to strike out the writ and statement of claim of Jack Zucco, disabled miner who sued for a silicosis pension. He upheld the board's contention that since it is an emanation of the Crown, it can only be sued by petition of right. The board had refused Zucco's claim for a pension, claiming he was not disabled by silicosis.

A second motorist charged as the result of a car-ramming incident on Fisgard last month pleaded guilty in city police court Friday to a reduced charge of careless driving.

Orest T. Proznick, Vancouver truck driver, was originally charged with criminal negligence. He was fined $40 by Magistrate H. C. Hall and restricted to business driving for two months.

Prosecutor Alan Bigelow asked that the lesser charge be substituted in view of testimony in the trial of the second driver involved.

Roderick A. Perry, 2627 Blanchard, was convicted of criminal negligence in city court Oct. 26 and was fined $150. His licence was also suspended.

Perry admitted ramming his car into the side of Proznick's after a chase through downtown streets.

J. A. NEALE
... spearheads detection drive.

Free Diabetes Tests Offered Here Next Week

An estimated 3,000 to 6,000 Victorians who are suffering from diabetes but are unaware of their ailment may be brought under early treatment following free tests which will be carried out here next week.

The tests will be conducted by the Canadian Diabetic Association in co-operation with local doctors and the Victoria Daily Times.

President of the Victoria District Branch, CDA, J. A. Neale says, although the disease is most prevalent among the middle-aged and overweight, many of the victims are under 15 years of age. It is most likely to occur if there has been previous history of the disease in the family.

District general practitioners have agreed to conduct free urinalyses at their offices between November 14 and 21 and testing stations will also be established at Royal Jubilee Hospital, St. Joseph's Hospital and at the City Health Centre on Cook Street.

If the presence of diabetes is established early enough, treatment is effective and complications easily controlled. This applies in the case of people who feel well now but are unaware they are diabetics.

In Canada there are 250,000 known diabetics and perhaps an additional 300,000 potential sufferers.

Persons wishing to be tested should complete the form printed at right and present it with a urine sample to their family physician or one of the central testing stations. The sample should be contained in a clean glass bottle and the top tightly fastened. A two or three-ounce sample is required.

Tests will be carried out in the presence of the applicant and will be completed in a few minutes.

Following are the times when samples may be presented at testing stations:

Royal Jubilee, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, noon to 5:30 p.m.

St. Joseph's, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, noon to 9 p.m.

City Health Centre, Thursday and Friday, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Doctors' offices, Nov. 14 to 21 inclusive, regular office hours.

MONTE ROBERTS

It may say Bouff Bourguignon on the menu, but it's still stew on the plate.

Evacuation plan delayed one week, the paper says. Postmaster needs time to organize, the paper adds. Can't understand this. Why don't they just mail out the plans and save the postmaster all that trouble?

Shouldn't admit this, but I've had a sneak preview of the get-out-of-town-before-it's-too-late plan. Turns out I am supposed to evacuate from View Royal to Darkest Sooke.

Turns out my boss is supposed to evacuate from HIS home to Deepest Sidney. Just mentioned this as a warning to the residents of Darkest Sooke and Deepest Sidney. To where are THEY going to evacuate?

But the whole problem of evacuation is simple, as far as business and industry is concerned. Business and industry will simply move to Nanaimo.

Most of it has already.

Can hardly wait until 8.15 p.m. Nov. 21. Place is Metchoin School. Occasion is meeting of the PTA. Subject will be:

"Are our schools producing well-rounded citizens?"

Answer is, yes.

Right here in our office we have some of the roundest citizens you ever did see.

It appears the QOR's will leave with the best wishes and sincere support of many hundreds of friends and relatives, and the anxious yearnings of the finance companies.

Victoria's cluster lights may be colored red, blue, green and yellow during the Yuletide season.

All we need is a neon sign reading "tilt" and we're in business.

The Social Credits are planning to move to Ottawa. Hardly seems far enough away.

And Solon Low says the Secreds will electrify the Canadian people.

Or did he say electrocute?

I have been asked about the two salmon on which I reported yesterday. How did I listen in on their conversation? I was asked.

Used my herring aid, I replied.

More than 80 customs officers and their wives gathered recently to honor Surveyor of Customs and Excise Jack Angus, who has retired after 32 years' service with the customs here.

Prior to the party, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Angus, 2646 Muirgrave Street, Mr. Angus received a camera and accessories presented on behalf of the staff by Gerald A. Yardley, collector of customs and excise.

About 550 extra employees, 250 men and 300 women, will be hired to assist in the Christmas mailing rush at Victoria Post Office.

Postmaster R. F. Reid says preparations are under way for a record mailing period.

Registration for Christmas period employment should be made at the National Employment Service office, 1089 Johnson. No applications will be accepted at the post office. Those who have already made application through NES need not do so again.

Film entitled "General Education" will be shown at the monthly meeting of Burnside PTA in the school auditorium, Wednesday at 8 p.m. Details of a bazaar to be held Wednesday, Nov. 21, at 2:30 p.m., will be completed.

18-Year-Olds Get Suez Duty

Detachment of riflemen from Second Battalion Queen's Own Rifles of Canada starts its journey from Camp Gordon Head to the Suez Canal zone Sunday at 3:30 p.m. from CPR wharf. Earlier plans to fly more than 200 troops and officers to join the First Battalion QORs in Calgary this afternoon and Sunday morning were cancelled due to weather conditions.

The Queen's Own Rifles have a high position in this nation's battle history. Regiment was organized in Toronto in 1860. It now has three battalions, two in the regular army and the third a unit of the militia.

They are the 1st, now at Calgary, the 2nd battalion, and the 3rd (militia) battalion at Toronto.

Happiest men at Camp Gordon Head Friday afternoon were 18-year-olds, suddenly permitted by a change in qualifications to volunteer for Middle East duty.

They scrambled for the battalion orderly room to submit their names as soon as officers spread the word around camp that men of the full age of 18 would be accepted.

Previous orders restricted volunteers to single men 19 years old and married men over 21.

The regiment's battle casualties in First World War and the Second World War exceeded 5,400, of which 1,573 were fatal.

The 1st battalion, as now constituted, was formed October 16, 1953, when the 1st and 2nd Canadian Rifle Battalions were redesignated respectively the 1st and 2nd battalions, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada.

At the same time, the militia battalion was redesignated as the 3rd battalion.

ASK The TIMES

Q.—How did the game of bridge get its name? L.L.

A.—Your question opens a field much too broad to be covered in the space of this column. Philologists for many years have found perplexity in answering that question and been unable to trace some of the paths of inquiry to a satisfactory end. To come into possession of what is known on the subject and to form your own opinions on the various theories that exist, it is suggested you visit one of the chief libraries. The Provincial Library is able to show you a large amount of literature in the field about which you inquire.

Q.—What is the present population of Charlottetown? T.L.D.

A.—The federal census of June, 1956, recorded the population of the capital city of Prince Edward Island as 16,446. At the 1951 census it was 15,887.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

Business Pays 49% of Total Taxes in Victoria, Says City Businessman

(The controversial question of whether Victoria businesses are paying enough money to the city in trade taxes has been analyzed for the Times by Hugh R. Stephen, a city businessman. The issue was raised in City Council by Ald. Don Smith who contends the city really gets a great deal more revenue from business. Mr. Stephen takes issue with Ald. Smith. Mr. Stephen is vice-president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and also a member of the Tax Planning Board, but in this instance has written as a private businessman and not attempting to express views of these organizations.)

By H. R. STEPHEN

Regardless of the validity of Alderman Smith's contention that licence fees paid by city business firms are insufficient, his remarks have, unfortunately, left the impression that business as a whole is not contributing its fair share to city revenues.

I am sure that so experienced a business man as Alderman Smith would be among the first to correct that impression. However, since he has not, to my knowledge, so far done so may I present the following facts for his perusal, and for those others who appear all too eager to scold business at every opportunity as the bad boy of the community. I am indebted for these figures to the annual report by the municipal manager for the year 1955 and to the Capital Region Planning Board.

Total taxes collected on land and improvements in the city last year amounted to $3,389,790. On page nine of the municipal manager's report appears the following breakdown in percentage form of the various classes of assessment:

Residential ..... 56.80% Industrial ..... 3.93%

Commercial ..... 39.03% Other ..... 24%

It is only fair to add that in the commercial figure above are included some apartments which, for the purposes of this argument, were better classed as residential.

Applying the above percentages to the tax total already given we arrive at the following:

Taxes paid by residential taxpayers ..... $1,925,400

Taxes paid by business taxpayers ..... $1,456,253

To this last figure must be added $83,972 raised from business through the so-called machinery tax and $304,594 raised from business through trades licences, making a grand total paid by business of $1,844,819 or 49% of the total taxes raised.

The Capital Region Planning Board has worked out for me a figure showing the percentage of the total land area of the city occupied by business premises of all kinds. That figure is 15% and again it includes apartments which offsets

We are therefore faced with the incontrovertible fact that business, which occupies only 15 per cent of the city's space, is footing 49 per cent of the bill! The Wicked Uncle is beginning to look suspiciously like Santa Claus.

In addition may I point out a further simple fact, so frequently overlooked. Whereas the householder makes use of the full range of city services, business, as such, utilizes only a portion of those services. For instance, business uses neither schools nor parks and makes no charge on these services, although its employees do. But they also pay taxes as householders.

The truth, distasteful as it may be to those who cannot or will not face it, is simply that in Victoria business is, to a large extent, subsidizing the taxes paid by the residential taxpayer. Or, to put this in more palatable form—if the land presently occupied by business were occupied instead by residences the present tax rate on existing residential property would be vastly increased.

This is not a popular fact to present. The truth very rarely is popular. But I know of no responsible official at City Hall who will deny it.

To those of us who, in one way or another, are endeavouring to encourage business development in the city the recurring attacks upon business by some of its misinformed critics are, to say the least, discouraging. The above facts are presented solely to set the record straight.

As I have said I am not disputing Alderman Smith's contention that there exists anomalies in Victoria's licence fee structure. However, I do not believe it has been made sufficiently clear that it is only a question of anomaly and not of overall underpayment. I have it on excellent authority, for instance, that were Vancouver's business tax substituted for our present licence fees the city would be out of pocket by many thousands of dollars. This clearly means that while some classes of business may be underpaying, the majority are overpaying.

The whole problem of business licences is so complex that it is obviously a matter for provincial rather than municipal legislation. The present government has most wisely recognized and implemented the equalization of assessments throughout the province. The next step is surely equalization of licence fees. And who is in a better position to press this point with the government than Alderman Smith?

WORDS OF SIGNIFICANCE

(This is another in a series of weekly discussions with ministers of Greater Victoria churches who will be asked to comment on the Biblical passage which holds the most significance for them.)

"It is more blessed to give than to receive."

"This divine maxim, so familiar to us today, was originally a few words spoken by the Lord Jesus and used later by the Apostle Paul," said Rev. Petrina C. McClenahan, co-pastor of Foursquare Church in Esquimalt.

"Certainly none of us can deny the joy of being the recipient of an act of kindness bestowed on us in the form of a gift."

"God has made us all dependent upon His giving and also mutually dependent upon one another, but giving, like mercy, is twice blessed—it blesses him that gives, and him that takes."

"The greater blessing in giving will not be felt if we give reluctantly," Mrs. McClenahan said.

"So often we give gifts because they are expected. We pay compliments for the sake of being polite. We give to charities under pressure of public opinion. We lend to our neighbor and wish he had not asked us."

"Giving must be simple and sincere if it is to be blessed. There must be, even in a small measure, the pain of sacrifice. 'When we give without this feeling we do not feel, to the depths, the joyfulness of the more blessed.'"

"A supreme blessedness was reached when God gave to the world His only Son, but each of us has something to give and must give it. We, too, will be blessed if we give of ourselves that others might receive."

Victoria Daily Times SATURDAY, NOV. 10, 1956 17

Padre Douglas Fuller, RCN, and Mrs. Fuller, with two-year-old Terry, have recently moved from Jamestown, Ont., to live in Victoria at 495 Vincent Avenue.

A Welcome to Newcomers

The fall of the year is a time for change . . . and the families pictured on this page have been caught in the mood of the season by moving to Victoria to make their homes. Some come from other parts of Canada, while one family travelled from a southern country.

After spending two years in Monterey, Mexico, Mr. and Mrs. Neil A. Magrath and family have made their home in Victoria on Pandora Avenue. Mr. Magrath is an engineer with the B.C. Power Commission, and Mrs. Magrath has lectured to many women's clubs on her world travels. Mr. and Mrs. Magrath have lived in 22 countries. Fourteen-year-old Leslie, left, is a member of Christ Church Cathedral choir, and Roseann, seated at the piano, is in her first year pre-medical at Victoria College. Both Leslie and Roseann speak fluent Spanish.

Gold Complements White Bridal Gown At Candlelit Service on Mainland

Pristine white with gold was the color theme chosen for the wedding of Constance Eva Norah Mayne to Douglas Elliot Forrest, Friday evening, St. Helen's Anglican Church, Whalley, North Surrey, B.C., was candlelit and decorated with fall flowers en tone. The double-ring ceremony was performed by Rev. D. A. Hatfield for the daughter of Lt.-Cmdr. (ret.) and Mrs. H. W. Mayne, 1515 Fell Street, Victoria, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlyle Forrest, Vancouver.

The bride's afternoon-length gown of white lace was styled with scalloped, scoop neckline, fitted bodice, lowered waistline and full skirt. A coronet headress held her shoulder-length veil and her jewelry was a set of pearl earrings and necklace. She carried a bouquet of Talisman roses and stephanotis in cascade design.

Gowns of pale gold color, matching the Talisman roses in the bride's bouquet, were worn by a trio of attendants, Miss Maxine McCracken, Vancouver, maid of honor, and Miss Malmo Ellip, Vancouver, and Miss Claire Thomas, Victoria, bridesmaids. Gowns were identically styled with back fullness in the skirts and graceful portrait collars. Their feathered hair bandeaux matched their gowns and they carried white chrysanthemums in cascade bouquets.

Best man was W. D. McFarland,

Victoria, and ushers were Andrew Jezterski, Vancouver, and Jim Killeen, Vancouver.

Reception was held at the Dell Hotel, where white and gold chrysanthemums decorated the bride's table, and the newlyweds cut a wedding cake topped with Talisman roses. The best man proposed the toast to the bride.

The bride is traveling to Seattle and Portland in a honeymoon ensemble of avocado green and brown. Her sheath dress was of the green and she wore a light brown fur coat, matching feather hat and corsage of Talisman roses and stephanotis.

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest will live at Bonanza Motel, 9163 King George Highway, Newton, B.C.

IN STEP WITH STYLE

Little Girl Fashions Are Going to Holiday Parties

By NONA DAMASKE

Christmas parties at school and at home will soon be part of the life of the little ladies of the family. A pretty dress and a soft hair style will transform the pigtailed tomboy into a perfect young lady (you hope).

Choosing a dress for your young fry from one of our downtown shops will be a simple matter as there are many lovely styles arriving every day. If you plan to choose fabric and make your daughter's holiday dress, as so many mothers do, there are ever so many new patterns.

Little girl fashions and grown-up fashions for holiday parties have much in common—back panels, the Empire line, the princess line, skirts with flaring fullness, overskirts and set-in panels.

The fabrics that mother and daughter are wearing for the holidays appear in fashions for little girls, too. You'll find cotton satin, printed corduroy, polished cotton, crisp organdy and acetate taffetas. Fabrics should be chosen for practicality as well as for a pretty look. There is a wide choice of washable fabrics and some drip-dry, no-iron materials which your young school girl can learn to manage herself.

Holiday colors for small girls follow the delicate trend in adult clothes. There are soft yellows and blues, violets and greens. There is a whole rainbow of pinks, from candy to vivid peach.

Petticoats and slips rank high on the list of must-haves for the gal developing from the tomboy stage. Some manufacturers show petticoats attached to each of their dresses.

Petticoats are full, but not stiff. Their fullness comes from ruffles and pleating. Solid color short socks in a harmonizing shade or white, and black patent slippers, complete the party ensemble of your pride and joy.

I will leave you now and get on with my sewing... I am no seamstress, believe me, but when I was looking over the patterns for party dresses I simply could not resist them... If I have any luck I hope to produce a dress for my pretty little goddaughter, Elizabeth Joan Jennings. It will still be a surprise for she hasn't learned to read yet.

Nona

The dresses that small fry will wear for holiday parties have all the flair of grown-up fashions. Fine ribbon-striped pink voile is used for dress (left) with alternate panels of delicate lace and rosebud embroidery. The bouffant skirt is gathered in by a wide pink sash. Solid and printed cotton are combined (centre) in dress with bib front and lace-edged rosebud print. There are two butterfly panels at back. Princess lines appear in party dress (right) of polished cotton paired with lined organdy bodice. Polished cotton is used again for collar and cuffs.

FOR PARENTS ONLY

Remembrance Day Thoughts Centre Around Need for World Outlook

By NANCY CLEAVER

"This is a snapshot of my boy in uniform, taken on his eighteenth birthday when he enlisted. His RCAF plane was shot down and he lost his life just a year later," a father said as he showed me the picture from his wallet. What a merry twinkle this Canadian lad had in his eyes... and how wistful was the look on the father's face! He needed no Remembrance Day to recall his son!

On Sunday, the memory of millions of young men who died in two World Wars is honored. But parents, especially parents of sons, know full well that honoring the memory of the men who made the supreme sacrifice is but an empty thing, unless we do all in our power to prevent a Third World War.

Leading men and women in all walks of life are facing the sober fact that if as nations we refuse to "hang together," we assuredly will hang individually (and collectively) in a horrible all-embracing disaster.

One of the ways to avert this tragedy is to work faithfully and intelligently to give to our boys and girls a world outlook and an understanding of all the peoples of the earth. Hostility between nations and narrow, blind patriotism of individuals are based in part on race prejudice. The strange thing is that this race prejudice is not an inherited characteristic but an acquired attitude.

Teachers in nursery schools for small children in large cosmopolitan areas have observed that pre-school youngsters display no antagonism or superiority to other children whose skin is of a different color. Of course, they notice that there are various kinds of children in their group, but the white child or the yellow or the colored child naturally treats other children as his equals.

What a pity that a child overhears grownups talking about "Niggers," "Chinks," "Dagoes" and other disparaging nicknames for people of other races! It is not very long before a child catches a sense of superiority and begins to look down on other children who are not of his race. A dangerous harvest is reaped from the smouldering resentment and hatred which is thus sown in the hearts of people who have been treated as "inferior."

Parents should teach their children that the many races on the earth add greatly to the variety and culture of the world and that each nationality has a special contribution all its own to make to the world community. Christian parents are often reminded that the foundation for world peace lies not just in lip service, but in carrying out into everyday situations Christ's teaching that there is one God, the Father of Mankind, and that all men are brothers and precious to the Great Creator.

Youth organizations such as Scouts and Guides, church groups for boys and girls such as Mission Bands, all encourage a view of the horizons beyond one's own country and genuine friendliness.

It was my privilege to observe at the Eighth World Scout Jamboree at Niagara-on-the-Lake boys of many races and tongues representing the six million Scouts scattered over the face of the globe. The spirit of goodwill and brotherhood there was something I will never forget.

An interest in the United Nations should be encouraged by mothers and fathers and not just left to teachers. Ask at the public library for books on the UN and on stories of children of other countries. If there is no local United Nations branch in your community write to the national office of the UN Association in Canada, 340 McLeod Street, Ottawa, for free information.

The kind of world which will be built, and it may even be the actual survival of civilization, depends to a very great extent on the attitude of boys and girls to other races and other nations. As parents, what are you doing about your son's and your daughter's appreciation of people of other nations and about the growth of their loyalty as a world citizen?

HERBS IN THE HOME

Next week on this page a special series, "Herbs in the Home," will be presented for our readers. The articles are written by Patricia Rae who was born in Victoria (maiden name Allen), but who has lived in China, England, Scotland, India and New Zealand, where she had a small herb farm.

"I wanted to do something interesting as well as free-lance writing; and herbs seemed to be the perfect answer. Besides they're such a help in cooking and you can make all sorts of novelties with them..." she tells you.

Mrs. Rae, now returned to this city, will answer any questions on herbs you may wish to ask. Address her care of the Victoria Daily Times.

And, be sure to watch for "Herbs in the Home."

LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

About a shower: My older daughter is to be married in a month. A younger daughter wants very much to have been trying to talk her out of the idea. The guests would all be young girls who naturally don't earn much. They are being invited to other showers, and I think the financial strain too much for them. But my daughter feels so badly that I'm beginning to wonder if I should be more lenient.

Louise Davis answers: This is another case of "mother knows best." Your daughter means well but close relatives should never give showers because they would be obligating their friends to purchase gifts.

There is no reason why your younger daughter should not give a party—any kind—just so it isn't a shower. It is the happy occasion rather than a gift collection that counts.

If your daughter wants to see that her sister gets something at her party, she can purchase yardage for linen dish towels, cut them to the right length and have needles, thread and thimbles ready. Then ask each girl to hem a towel while the party is in progress. Afterwards she can launder them and present them to her sister "from the gang."

"THE ROOKIE"

When I go to the hockey, I often sigh. I wish I was back in Oak Bay High. But that of course, is not in the dice. But I long to be back, down there on the ice.

By MAURICE HUMBER. You should have seen me, when I used to tear. 'Tho I had no regular job, just 3rd extra spare. It was the big game, 3 minutes to go.

Our guys were sprawling, all over the snow; I could hear the kids shouting, sensing doom. As I waited for the nod in the dressing-room, I was all dolled up, my gear was all new.

White pants, shiny gloves, & a sweater of blue. I kinda wished I was stronger, had a better physique. As I pulled on my straps, both ankles were weak.

Then I heard the kids stamping over my head. What I heard them shouting, filled me with dread. It grew to a crescendo, & and I heard thru the lumber.

"WE WANT HUMBER..." I banged my pads with my stick shiny new. "O.K. kid," screamed the coach, "it's up to you."

I leaped on the ice, the kids yelled, "WE'VE GOTTEM." One ankle went up, I went flat on my bottom.

I picked myself up, only seconds to go. I intercepted a pass; it nearly busted my toe. I tried to turn right, to get a shot at the goal.

But I hadn't learned that way, so went out of control. A big bully hit me, my mind went amuck. I took a wild swipe at that black-devil puck.

Pandemonium broke loose in that old gloryhole. If you're listening Colin, 'twas THE WINNING GOAL.

Drug Store Playtime Set To Keep Youngsters Happy

By PENNY SAVER

"Let's play store!" How often have you mothers heard that cry from your off-spring? For a change, make the play store a drug store. The children will have fun mixing "prescriptions," weighing and measuring "compounds" and filling gelatin capsules. In a large fitted box you'll find a prescription pad, complete with prescriptions for "headache," "cold," "vitamin deficiency" and "stomach upset." There's a graduated beaker, spatula, compounds Nos. 1, 2 and 3, plastic scale with weights, pillboxes, gelatin capsules a mixing spoon and mortar and pestle. In another section of the box are tissues, soap, bandage, toothpaste and cough drops. All items are usable. You might have a budding pharmacist in the house. The sets are $2.50 each, and are just as much fun for the adults as for the children.

On sale at a special price are salt and pepper shakers of glazed pottery painted with fighting cocks. These shakers have long wooden handles and are selling at just 49 cents a pair. A good gift idea.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Many women and men do not know what to do about their hands when standing or sitting. One thing is certain—our hands are always in evidence. Even when we are not conscious of them, others are. Care of the hands and nails, therefore, become an important factor in the impression we give others.

If we are to look well-groomed we must either give ourselves a manicure once a week or have one at a beauty salon. In between times a nail brush and perhaps a little polish patching is all that will be necessary.

There are, however, some extra measures which will greatly enhance the appearance of these appendages. Here are some of them:

1. Whenever possible, keep your hands out of very hot water. When doing cleaning or laundry or anything which calls for strong soaps, use rubber gloves. Always use a hand lotion of course, after washing the hands.

2. Once or twice a week massage hand cream into the hands and then wear a pair of little hand mitts while you sleep. Many of these are most attractive.
3. Never cut the cuticle if you can avoid it. Naturally you will have to use cuticle scissors if you have a hangnail. Otherwise, push the cuticle back gently, using an orange stick with a little oil on the end of it.

4. Many women write about large veins in their hands. These are an inherited characteristic. Sometimes extreme overweight makes the veins more prominent. Keep the hands out of hot water and when you sit hold them up, whenever feasible, or place them on the arms of the chair rather than in your lap.

5. Paint the nails all the way to the tip if your fingers are short. This is slenderizing.
6. If you would like to have my hand exercises send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 12 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

A squeeze-n'-wash bottle of pliable plastic is a time and work saver for your house. The bottle has a nylon bristle brush screwed at one end. Screw off the brush head and pour detergent or cleaner to mark on the bottle. Fill with water and replace the brush. Then you spray suds on with quick squeezes and wash with the brush. It saves a lot of fuss and bother, and is a neat way of doing a cleaning job. The jars are 79 cents each.

Of English broadcloth are these men's shirts that need no ironing. Honestly, you just rinse in mild suds, hand up to drip dry, and the shirt irons itself as it dries. They're put out by a well-known shirt manufacturer and are smart. The price is $7.50.

Ovenproof casseroles that withstand years of use are attractive and practical in pink or aqua with a black mist trim. Round casseroles with lids can be taken from the oven and plunked into their own serving baskets, so there are no burnt fingers, and no need to transfer cooked food from cooker to server—they're both one. These are $5.95. Slightly smaller oval shaped casseroles without wicker baskets are $4.25.

White bunny fur hats for the tots are a touch of real luxury. Little hats that cover top and sides of head and the ears tie under the chin and are just right for cold weather. Another style, more like a pointed bonnet is also of white fur. Either hat sells at $2.95.

Do You Need a Lantern?

No matter how you see it, vitamin A has eye appeal. It plays its role by keeping eyes and skin healthy. Without enough of this vitamin, people can develop night blindness.

Victims of night blindness include the motorist who saw straining in the twilight to see approaching traffic, or the theatre-goer groping blindly for his seat in the dimly-lit movie house. Their difficulty, in seeing in dim light or adapting quickly to sudden darkness, is probably due to lack of vitamin A. For night blindness is what we call a dietary disease. Usually, it can be avoided or cured by eating foods rich in this vitamin.

Another role played by vitamin A is skin deep. Too little of this vitamin can cause dryness, scalliness and itching of the skin over the entire body. Shortly after vitamin A was discovered, reports claimed that it had some effect on control of colds and respiratory infections. Later research studies have failed to show that persons receiving extra vitamin A have fewer colds than those who eat a well-balanced diet.

Your everyday diet will rate A plus if you eat plenty of liver, milk, eggs and green and yellow vegetables. Butter and fortified margarine contribute worthwhile amounts of vitamin A, too. Thus your "battered" toast, roll or sandwich offers an easy and tasty way to get several important parts of an adequate diet—vitamin A from the butter or margarine, B vitamins, iron, calcium and protein from the enriched or wholewheat bread, and important food energy from both.

Vitamin A leads a double life, as well as playing a dual role in health. It occurs in plants as carotene—a brilliant yellow substance. (It's carotene that paints the carrot orange and its name is derived from this vegetable). The body is equipped to make vitamin A from carotene. It is a "fat soluble" vitamin, and thus needs the help of digestible fats like whole milk, egg yolk, butter, margarine or fish liver oils for its absorption and use in the body.

"In the face of great obstacles women have projected their vision beyond the narrow circle of home and family interests," she said.

Miss Phyllis Audrey Rose entered St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, on the arm of her father this afternoon to become the bride of James Herbert Parker in a ceremony performed by Archdeacon A. E. deL. Nunn.

Yellow and bronze chrysanthemums were placed on the altar, and Richard Proudman played traditional organ music. Pews were marked with white chrysanthemums.

lace featured a V-neckline and stand-up lace collar. Long sleeves tapered to lily points over the hands. Her fingertip veil of nylon tulle was held to a pleated tulle headdress with clusters of pearl orange blossoms. She wore pearls and carried a cascade bouquet of Johanna Hill roses with swansonia and white chrysanthemums.

Programs To Meet World Needs

In her travels from coast to coast, Mrs. Rylie Smith, national president of the YWCA, finds a strong desire on the part of local YWCA associations to be able to meet the real needs in their own communities.

Programs are being changed to meet these needs, Mrs. Smith says. "We cannot sit off and operate alone. We are part of the community. We've got a job to do, and so, we are working out practical methods of presenting the Christian way of life in a modern setting."

Mrs. Smith, who is on an official visit to the local "Y," is very proud of a new YWCA program feature on public affairs and citizenship. "A few years ago our young adults asked for such a program. We gave them our 'Key to Canada' in which we try to foster an active interest in community, national and international affairs. 'We find not only our young adults but our women on boards and committees are interested. They wish to become conversant with these matters.'"

Through their programs the YWCA is striving to have members think of world problems in terms of people. Mrs. Smith pointed out, "We can draw this home sharply through our own world connections. We have YWCA's in 66 different countries. Through our world service organization we, in Canada, contribute to the upkeep of these groups but I can assure you that the benefits we get from our association with members in these different countries are far more valuable than any money we contribute."

"In times like these we must keep our minds on world projects. We must continue to think and work for peace or we are lost."

Elected in 1953 for a four-year term, Mrs. Smith, who lives in Toronto, hopes to visit each local group across Canada at least once in that time. She has been to Newfoundland and the Maritimes, to Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Her present tour takes in Alberta and British Columbia.

Wherever she goes she finds a great need for trained leadership in YWCA work. "Not that young women are not still going in for this work. There are, however, so many other fields now that women may enter."

Mrs. Smith will be in Victoria until Monday. She is staying at the Empress Hotel.

THE CORPORATION OF THE DISTRICT OF SAANICH

Redefinition of Southwesterly Part of Municipal Boundary

WHEREAS there is some uncertainty as to the location of boundary between Lake District and Esquimalt District, which boundary defines part of the southerly boundary of the Municipality of Saanich,
AND WHEREAS it is deemed expedient to clearly define such boundary,
AND WHEREAS it is deemed desirable to adjust the westerly boundary of the Municipality between Victoria District and Esquimalt District,
THEREFORE TAKE NOTICE that the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the District of Saanich, pursuant to the provisions of Section 19 (1) of the "Municipalities Incorporation Act," propose to apply for an Order-in-Council defining the southwesterly boundary of the Municipality of Saanich as follows:

G. HAYWARD,
Municipal Clerk,
Royal Oak P.O. B.C.

NEW VICE-PRESIDENT
B.C. Federation of Agriculture is H. Derek Arnold, Duncan poultryman. Elected Friday at the annual convention, held at Chilliwack, Mr. Arnold also represents the poultry group on board of directors. J. A. Shaneman, Duncan, is a director representing dairy interests. Federation president is Arthur Swenson, Delta dairyman.

Farmers Reject Small Egg Publicity Plan

CHILLIWACK—B.C. Federation of Agriculture rejected a resolution from poultrymen asking the government to conduct an advertising program for small eggs, when others at the annual convention here quipped that it should include small apples and small potatoes.
Derek Arnold, Duncan poultryman, rebuffed the resolution, but suggested the public should know the economy of buying small eggs. "A small egg from a young hen is better than a large egg from an old hen," he said.

Labeling
The poultrymen succeeded in passing other resolutions which would require labeling of egg cartons with the country of origin, and retention of the present law requiring imported eggs to be stamped with the name of the country of origin.
Two resolutions proposed by milk interests, and passed by the convention, asked that one milk producer from Vancouver Island and two from the mainland be appointed to the B.C. Milk Board, and that producers be given their monthly milk cheques earlier than at present.

Be Realistic
PARKSVILLE-QUALICUM BEACH PROGRESS — Indiscriminate shooting of does and fawns at any time, in any area, is a despicable practice, but those who destroy tiny fawns on private property to which fish and game groups have obtained access have no right in the woods. They are embarrassing the clubs which only secured access for deer hunting after many months of negotiation.
Censuring unknown hunters who have failed to keep the faith may have little effect, but one factor is crystal clear: If indiscriminate shooting continues, it may be difficult for fish and game clubs to renew their access agreements with private firms.
*****
Embarrassed
COURTENAY ARGUS — It is unfortunate more of the general public failed to attend the major civil defence forum held in Courtenay over the weekend.
Absence of the public, of course, was no surprise. Attitudes of people toward civil defence range mainly from disinterested apathy and disbelief, to disillusionment and opposition, even among some key community leaders.
Although a third totalitarian war would be one of the most unfortunate catastrophes to befall mankind and every conceivable effort should be made to avoid it, that in itself is not a very reassuring premise on which to base a lack of preparation for trying to save lives. The people and governments of all countries daily continue to display too many self-centred immaturities to suggest the millennium and impossibility of war have arrived.

Woolly-Minded Earl Highlight of Show

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON, Times Drama Critic
"The Children Hundreds" by William D. Home.
The Earl of Lister, Frank Watts, The Countess of Lister, Lesley Allen, June Farrell, Karel Larsen, Bessie, Pat Montgomery, Becham, Joe Lunn, Lark Pym, James Logan, Lady Caroline Smith, Damaris Jackson, Mr. Clapham, David Smart, Directed by Alia Rothary.
For their fall production, the Peninsula Players essayed one of the best sophisticated English comedies of recent years and on opening night, Friday, met with some success.

The play was staged in the auditorium of Mount Newton High School, Keating Cross Road, where it will be repeated tonight at 8.15.
A good size audience enjoyed the witty, sometimes pungent, lines.
Characterization of the woolly-minded old earl by Frank Watts was the highlight of the show. This was a well-rounded and accurate piece of work of considerable consistency.
Joe Lunn as the old-school major domo of Lister Castle, tended to play the part minus its underlying shrewdness and at times seemed unsure of himself. In board terms, however, he was all that one demands of stage butlers.

UNDERSTOOD PART
Lesley Allen showed a real understanding of the part of the countess, but appeared nervous. James Logan was a likeable Lord Pym; Karel Larsen in a typically brash interpretation of an American girl, was effective. A good bit of casting was seen in Pat Montgomery's laying of the susceptible maid. This is a promising actress with some quite delightful qualities.

BRIDGE REBUS

It's often easy to understand how things are going in another fellow's bridge hand by the looks and glances exchanged between partners. A puzzlist has devised this rebus based on such a situation. It tells what one partner's glance was intended to convey to a playing companion. How quickly can you "see" through it?

JONES' OUTING

Three bus lines leaving Bloomfield Junction go to Springfield Manor. From Springfield Manor one bus continues on to Harrison; another to Mount Vernon and thence to Bellevue. The third bus after leaving Springfield Manor goes on to Liberty and thence to Lincoln.

The bus fare from Bloomfield Junction to Springfield Manor is one dollar. From Bloomfield Junction to Bellevue, Harrison or Lincoln it is two dollars; intermediate stops, one dollar fifty.

Mr. Jones is at the Bloomfield Junction terminal station watching the clock and waiting for his bus. He has already bought his ticket. It cost him a dollar and a half and he is in a great hurry to reach his destination.

The first bus that pulls in has a sign "Lincoln" but Mr. Jones does not get aboard. The bus departs without him. What is his destination?

BRAIN TWIZZLER

Here is an opportunity to prove yourself a real mathematics research expert. The problem is to locate two numbers which behave in a fashion peculiar to very few numbers. You have perhaps learned by this time that two times two equals four and also two plus two equals four. Our present quest is for two other numbers which will do the same thing.

One of the two numbers is a whole number between seven and thirteen. The other one is composed of units and tenths and it is between one and three.

Now all you have to do is find the two numbers that added together produce the same answer that they do when multiplied. How quickly can you do it?

Answer: The numbers are 12 and 11. 12 + 11 = 23. 12 x 11 = 132.

WORD TO THE WISE

If you are quick-witted, you should be able to rearrange the letters in the word "thermo" to form another word within 1 minute. Ready, go—

Answer: One answer is "mother".

NEW ARRIVAL: Black and white border collie, female, about eight months, found in the Gorge district.

READY FOR ADOPTION: Alert watchdog and excellent companion for youngsters is Boots, whose predominant strain is German-shepherd.

Och, ay, and here's a bonnie doggie—black and brown Scotch collie. Treve is the name, age 3½ years, very patient with children and a good watch dog. Duke is a shetland collie, friendly and gregarious, likes to go visiting. Eight months, male.

One of the handsomest small dogs to visit here in a long time is Smitty, one-year-old black cocker. Very loving and lovable disposition.

Black and white male, mostly springer spaniel, nicely marked in black and white. Name's Butch. In his prime at two years old.

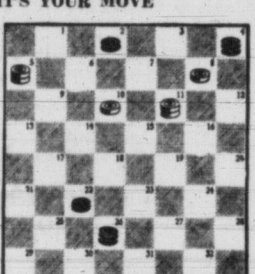

Peppy is the name for this Labrador cross, male, but at two years he's rather more dignified type. Likes people—all of them.

Spayed female 99 per cent collie, a real beauty from aristocratic nose to bushy tail. Five years old, good with kids, an alert watchdog.

Cindy is a cheerful, friendly gal of collie and Labrador parentage, nine months old, good age to adapt to new home.

Short-haired terrier type, male, three years old. Name's Fatsio, but he isn't really. Friendly, playful, easily adaptable.

The "Little Red Basket Shop"

Walking through the store today I was delighted (and surprised) to find that the "Little Red Basket Shop" is now open on EATON'S Third Floor... delighted, because shopping in this section of the store has always been a special treat... surprised, because I had just realized that Christmas is so close (just 36 shopping days away). At the entrance to this unique "little shop" I picked up a gay basket (bright and shining as a holly berry), and in an instant I was fully engrossed in the glitter and gaiety that came only once a year when I shop for Christmas.

Cards for Everyone
... I decided to shop for cards first and as I began to fill my "Little Red Basket" I stopped for a moment dazzled by the beauty of colour and design of this season's card display. I found delightful and individual cards for each member of the family and for all my friends, each suitably inscribed. For mailing overseas I chose cards inscribed "Merry Christmas From Canada." I even found personal cards for the milkman, the mailman and my insurance man...

More, More, More Cards
... as I paused (just to look) in front of the boxed cards, I found I was humming snatches of "Jingle Bells." Here again I found the display of cards absolutely breathtaking, from the hundreds of boxes I just couldn't resist these three, (each priced well below 2.00 for the box). First I chose the "Dickens" box because the "Christmas Carol" is as traditional as mistletoe, the familiar scenes, as "Homey" as roast turkey. The second box was of "Nativity Scenes," different this season because of the lovely and unusual colours used... last I chose a box of "Cathedral Windows" depicting Nativity Scenes, the rich colours and fine art work made this box impossible to pass by.

Wrappings and Ribbons
I stopped in the section of the Little Red Basket Shop that features gift wrappings, here again I was fascinated by the large and colourful display of wrappings by such famous makers as Wm. E. Coultis, Rust Craft, Gibson and many others. My choices ranged from single sheets to a complete Gift Wrapping Kit, each design seemed nicer than the last and I could picture the beautiful gifts under the tree on Christmas day. I chose from a rainbow of ribbons and added some dainty, ready-made pompon bows, stickers and gift tags to my Little Red Basket.

Eyes Right for More News
... full to overflowing, I took my Little Red Basket to the check-out clerk where she efficiently and courteously wrapped my purchases.

Next time you're in EATON'S treat yourself to a shopping trip in the gay and relaxing atmosphere of the Little Red Basket Shop... and when you reach the check stand, don't be surprised if you're singing bits of "White Christmas" or "Jingle Bells" for you'll find the "Spirit of Christmas" right among the ribbons and bows in EATON'S Little Red Basket Shop.

Eyes to the right for more news of The Little Red Basket Shop...

SCs Reject Revision Of Car Insurance

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Times Political Reporter

VANCOUVER—The B.C. Social Credit League convention today rejected a Chilliwack resolution asking the government to bring about a revision of auto insurance rates.

The resolution called for "a just and adequate rate and coverage."

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said B.C. has no control over auto insurance rates, as these are fixed by the companies concerned.

A resolution from Cowichan-Newcastle asking the government to investigate dental costs in B.C. was tabled on the motion of Health Minister Eric Martin.

"This resolution is about a year behind the times," Mr. Martin said. "We have already instituted a full inquiry into this matter."

The conference tabled a resolution from Comox asking that dental technicians be allowed to make dental plates, execute repairs, and deal directly with the general public.

This afternoon the conference debated a motion from Saanich asking the government to amend the Motor-Vehicle Act to make it compulsory for each licensee to carry a minimum of $20,000 public liability insurance.

The convention unanimously supported a resolution that the government continue its present policy of refusing recognition to the Communist government of China.

"This refers to diplomatic relations, not trade relations," Attorney General Bonner said.

"We approve a policy of refusing diplomatic recognition to China, but we are in favor of trade with China."

"We shall have to trade with the world sooner or later. It may as well be sooner."

LONDON (Reuters)—The traditional Lord Mayor's parade had an uninvited exhibitor Friday when an ancient automobile manned by students followed the end of the mile-long procession.

Cheered on by 100 students running behind it, the car, a 1902 two-cylinder Renault, was out of character with the theme of the procession — "Aluminium, newest of the world's basic metals."

After a brief, hilarious run through London's business district, three mounted policemen, diverted the ancient car and students down a side street.

Riding in his heavy scarlet and gilt state chariot drawn by six dapple greys, the new Lord Mayor, Sir George Cullum Welch, was preceded by military bands and floats demonstrating the functions of aluminium.

One of the floats carried Donald Campbell's jet racing speedboat Bluebird, which last September travelled at 225.63 miles an hour to break the world's water speed record.

Russia to Permit Egypt 'Volunteers'

ROYAL TOUR IN COLOR FEATURED IN WEEKEND

Four pages of color photographs of Princess Margaret's tour of East Africa are a feature of Weekend Magazine in this issue today.

UN Police Force Flying From All Over World

LONDON (UP)—A 6,000-man United Nations police force began converging on Naples in Italy today for duty in the Suez Canal zone as quickly as Egypt agrees.

Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser still had not given consent.

He said the government would study the UN resolution setting up the international force "word by word" because Egypt did not intend "to be taken in by deceit after they were unable to take us by force."

QOR's LEAVING SUNDAY BY BOAT

Bad flying weather washed out TCA and RCAF airlifts scheduled to take a draft of Queen's Own Rifles from Patricia Bay to Calgary today and Sunday.

Troops will make the trip Sunday afternoon by ferry and rail. (See Page 17 for detailed story.)

TENSION-RIDDEN WEEK of emergency UN sessions on mid-east crisis is reflected by Israel ambassador Abba Eban.

Thousands Ready; Western Nations Fear New Korea

LONDON (CP)—Russia said tonight permission will be granted for trained volunteers to fight on the side of Egypt unless British, French and Israeli troops withdraw from Egyptian soil.

The Russians raised anew the threat of the Middle East turning into another Korea as advance units of a UN international police force headed for Naples—last stop before actually setting foot in the Suez Canal area to take on the task of keeping peace in the Middle East.

Israelis already have said they will withdraw. But the time element—both for the withdrawal and the possible sending of Russian volunteers—remained uncertain.

In Washington, the U.S. state department said it would bar volunteers—as far as it is legally able to do so—from fighting on either side in Egypt.

Applications 'In Thousands'

A Soviet foreign ministry spokesman in Moscow told a press conference:

"Responsible organs of the Soviet government will raise no obstacles to the departure of these citizen volunteers" if foreign troops remain in Egypt.

(At Cairo, an Egyptian embassy spokesman had said a short time earlier the number of applications from Soviet volunteers "now runs into several thousands.") of obtaining a breathing space for their troops.

"The recent bombings and fresh landings of troops by air and sea indicate that the British and French governments do not intend to withdraw their troops from Egypt."

"If the British, French and Israel governments do not withdraw their troops in accordance with the UN resolution the Soviet government believes this will revive the threat to peace."

"While the Soviet government adheres to a policy of peaceful co-existence it cannot stand by and see a peace-loving independent people attacked by imperialist aggressors."

"If the aggressors do not withdraw their troops in accordance with the UN resolution, it is the view in Soviet government circles that responsible Soviet bodies will not prevent Soviet citizens who have volunteered to help Egypt in her fight against the aggressors from leaving the Soviet Union."

BULLETINS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—The emergency session of the UN General Assembly voted today to give the Middle East problem and the Hungarian situation high priority in the regular fall assembly opening next Monday. (See page 3.)

VIENNA (UP)—Hungarian Communists set up "terror courts" today in a new desperate move to smash still blazing rebel resistance.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Units of the U.S. fleet are on the move from west coast ports.

CAIRO (UP)—An Egyptian spokesman said today that despite denials, Anglo-French forces did bomb civilians in Port Said.

VIENNA—It has been estimated at least 20,000 persons have been killed in Budapest alone since Soviet forces began their suppression of the revolt last Sunday morning.

BONN (Reuters)—The West German newspaper Die Welt said today the Soviet foreign ministry press chief, Leonid Ilyichev, has indicated Russia is willing to discuss the question of sending United Nations observers to Hungary.

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—The Pope tonight broadcast a peace appeal to the world, the first of its kind since a similar appeal eight days before the outbreak of the Second World War.

ROTTERDAM (AP)—Dutch and Danish salvage companies will clear obstructions from the Suez Canal for the United Nations it was announced here today.

Albert Carter, First Parachutist In Canada, Succumbs Here at 61

Canada's first parachute officer, Wing Commander Albert Carter, MM, died in St. Joseph's Hospital here Thursday when an ancient automobile manned by students followed the end of the mile-long procession.

Cheered on by 100 students running behind it, the car, a 1902 two-cylinder Renault, was out of character with the theme of the procession — "Aluminium, newest of the world's basic metals."

Eisenhower Rejects 'Summit' Conference

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—President Eisenhower today told the Swiss government the United States wants to continue handling current international crises in the United Nations rather than join in a new "summit" conference of major powers at this time.

Eisenhower sent off a reply to the Swiss invitation to the United States, Britain, France, Russia and India for a new conference of heads of government.

to avert danger of a third world war.

The announcement of Eisenhower's reply was made at his farm home here shortly after he arrived from Washington for a few hours of relaxation.

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, said the president sent this cable to President Markus Feldmann of Switzerland: "The federal council's suggestion for a meeting in Switzerland of the five chiefs of government has revived urgent and sympathetic consideration here."

"I appreciate the sincerity of the Swiss proposal and share the concern for the preservation of peace which inspired it."

"However, the United Nations is actively seized with the various problems posing a threat to world peace—and I believe that interests of all will best be served by carrying these initiatives through to a successful conclusion."

In a heated attack on the minister union business manager Bill Black said "Mr. Martin talks out of both sides of his mouth at one time."

He claimed that during the election campaign the minister said B.C. hospital insurance service will pick up the tab for increased hospital workers' wages.

Mr. Black then read a letter, signed by Mr. Martin, which he claimed indicated Mr. Martin is not willing to lift the "freeze" order which has been imposed since 1953.

"However, the United Nations is actively seized with the various problems posing a threat to world peace—and I believe that interests of all will best be served by carrying these initiatives through to a successful conclusion."

In a heated attack on the minister union business manager Bill Black said "Mr. Martin talks out of both sides of his mouth at one time."

He claimed that during the election campaign the minister said B.C. hospital insurance service will pick up the tab for increased hospital workers' wages.

Mr. Black then read a letter, signed by Mr. Martin, which he claimed indicated Mr. Martin is not willing to lift the "freeze" order which has been imposed since 1953.

Nutting announced his resignation from his post, the No. 2 foreign office position, last week.

Winch Called Communist By Solon Low

VANCOUVER (CP)—Solon Low, national leader of the Social Credit party, Friday night, repeated a House of Commons statement that he thinks CCF Member of Parliament Harold Winch is a Communist.

(Mr. Winch, asked later to comment, said he is "not surprised." "You can expect abuse from such a man and such a party. He does not understand the situation. I think people here know me well enough to realize how foolish his words really are.")

Mr. Low was asked by a student questioner during a forum at the University of British Columbia whether he believes calling opponents Communists is a "good political technique."

He replied: "If they really are Communists."

The questioner said: "I was in the House of Commons, August 15, when you called Harold Winch a Communist. Do you really believe he is?"

"Yes, I do," the Social Credit leader said.

Bonner Chosen to 'Mastermind' Socred Federal Election Drive

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Times Political Reporter

VANCOUVER (CP)—Attorney-General Robert Bonner of British Columbia is to "mastermind" a Social Credit "march on Ottawa" in the 1957 federal elections it was announced here Friday.

Solon Low, national leader of the Social Credit party, declared himself fit to lead the party. Premier Bennett of British Columbia said he will support him.

But, Mr. Low told the B.C. Social Credit League's annual convention, Mr. Bonner has been named chairman of the national executive's special committee to map out the "on-to-Ottawa" campaign.

"We are tremendously thankful to have a young man of his great capabilities," the national leader said.

NO RIVALRY AT TOP

To a gathering of more than 600 persons exuberantly confident about Social Credit prospects in the next federal election, Mr. Bennett made it plain that he and Mr. Low, veteran Social Credit member of Parliament from Peace River, are not rivals for the leadership.

HEART ATTACK

Mr. Low drew a parallel between his health and that of President Eisenhower. Both suffered heart attacks three months apart in 1955.

At one time," said Mr. Low, referring to a heart attack he suffered last January, "there was some doubt as to whether I would be able to carry on. Today, thanks to your prayers, your faith and your goodwill, I am ready and able to lead our party to victory."

Mr. Bennett said that on analysis of the vote in the Sept. 19 provincial election, "We find we can win every single B.C. chevan."

REVENUE MINISTER HERE

Socred March East 'Optimistic'—McCann

Revenue Minister James J. McCann said here Friday Social Crediters are "optimistic" in thinking they can "march on to Ottawa" at next summer's general election.

"No one knows anything about them east of Saskatchewan," he said. "They are in power only provincially, in Alberta and B.C."

Dr. McCann arrived in Victoria Friday afternoon and will leave Sunday, following inspection of customs and excise and income tax offices.

He was confident the Liberal party will be re-elected federally.

But he added "Social Credit might sometime" beat the Conservatives to form a House of opposition.

Buoyancy of Canadian business was shown this year by the highest gross national product in history, higher than anticipated, he said.

"Increased revenue from deductions at the source show more people now are gainfully employed than ever before, and fewer unemployed."

Victoria will have facilities as fine as any Canadian city with completion next year of alterations to the customs and excise building, he said.

Victoria Socred Named B.C. Vice-President

VANCOUVER — Victorian Dick Lawrence was elected Friday to a two-year term as second vice-president of the B.C. Social Credit League.

Delegates to the league convention here named Walter J. Smith, Kamloops, first vice-president, and James McKenzie, Dawson Creek, third vice-president.

President N. J. Murphy has one more year to serve of his two-year term.

NEWSWOMAN HERE

Oil Splurge Little Help In Peace Area

Mrs. Margaret Murray, who with her husband owns and edits the 1,600-circulation Alaska Highway News at Fort St. John, isn't too happy about the big investment in the surrounding Peace River bloc in oil and gas.

She said here Friday that though close to $100,000,000 has been invested since 1950, direct benefits to the area economy have been slight.

"Some of the money catches on, but not too much," she said. "You must remember all rigs and many of the crews are brought in from elsewhere."

At present there are six oil wells and 35 gas wells producing in the area.

Mrs. Murray, who ran and was defeated as an independent candidate in the September provincial election, has been connected with publications nearly 45 years, and has edited three weekly newspapers along the Pacific Great Eastern route.

Her husband was a former MLA here and one-time editor of the Vancouver Sun.

She's visiting here investigating possibility of establishing a trade school at Fort St. John for training of printers as "the typographical craft is in a bad way at present. There is a critical shortage."

Opinions Are Various On Color Imprimature

This is the second part of a two-part article by Mr. Savery on methods of priming and laying in grounds. First part appeared on these pages last Saturday.

Let us briefly examine the use of colored grounds as opposed to the use of plain white. The writer at various times has failed to find any significant increase in luminosity with the use of a white ground as compared with one tinted in neutral grey, brown or yellow. If we use brighter color for the ground the whole tonality of the painting must be carefully considered. As a general rule it is more effective to use contrasting color schemes between the ground and the over-painting, viz.: cool color over a warm tone although there is nothing against the painting of warm color on warm color or cold color on cool hues to produce painterly effects.

Contrary to the general opinion red grounds do not always lower the tonality of a painting as will be seen in the works of both Goya and Rubens who painted, especially in the case of the first master, exclusively on such a ground which was very favorable to the technique of scrambling to which the artist was prone for various effects.

SAND ROUGH SURFACE
Vermilion is perhaps the red most useful and suitable for priming for it requires little oil as it produces a lean paint, but one of great luminosity. Having a rather horny rough surface on drying one must sand well to bring the texture to a suitable painting quality.

Yellow, the favored ground of the Flemish masters, strongly affects the over-painting tones tending to produce glowing effects in the warm colors and bright sunny greens from transparent blues. In fact, the writer has found that strongly tinted yellow priming imparts a type of radiance to thinly applied dark color passages.

The Old Masters of painting made a practice of tinting white lead with yellow lake and we may approximate this by strongly tinting the body color of white lead with cadmium yellow. However, if a more brilliant tone is required tint the body color ground with mars yellow.

Instead of priming the ground with bright rich color there is often good reason for using neutral indefinite colors as they often remove the need for under-painting and in portrait painting this is certainly the case.

A properly selected neutral grey or brown-grey ground has the tonality of grisaille and any under-painting desired, whatever the color, may be produced on a neutral toned ground with ease and the progress or rapid work is facilitated to a remarkable degree.

Music Went 'Round Valve Came Out

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP)—Roger Bobo, a tuba player in the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra, got a rousing cheer at a concert Thursday night. A valve fell out of his tuba in the middle of "Caucasian Dances" by Revueltas, and at the end of the piece guest-conductor Victor Alessandri of the San Antonio, Tex. orchestra turned to the audience to announce a three-minute delay while the tuba was repaired.

Commercials on next year's telecast of the Academy Awards presentation will be toned down considerably from last year. The Academy and the auto sponsor have agreed they will eliminate "irritating" commercials from the March 27 show. Nominations for the awards will be made in February and will not be televised.

BOOK TALK

By JAMES SCOTT

Jingle Bells Sounding Along Publishers' Row

Harbingers of headaches, writer's cramp, tender ribs, sore feet and 37 more shopping days before Christmas are beginning to appear along Book Row. Each year the trade produces a certain number of books which are frankly designed to appeal to the frantic Christmas shopper. Quite often these are very good books too.

They fall into three main categories: 1. the book which has Jolly Old St. Nick on the dust jacket and is blatantly about Christmas or some phase of it; 2. the very, very fancy picture book, usually cartoons, produced on the theory I suppose, that even if you're not sure the recipient of your book can read he at least will enjoy the pictures; and 3. the obvious best-seller, the book everybody will soon be talking about and maybe even reading.

All three categories are represented in this week's talk. Edward Streeter's Merry Christmas, Mr. Baxter is Christmas-shopper bait if I ever saw it right from the title and the gent in the raincoat on the cover through to the last page. Nevertheless, it is a nicely amusing book which is what I would expect from the author of Father of the Bride, Mr. Hobbs' Vacation, etc.

This May Start You Worrying

This one is about the pre-Christmas vicissitudes of a New Yorker father and grandfather. It is suave, just corny enough, and just accurate enough to provide easy, humorous reading.

Perhaps it is a better book to read after Christmas than before because what it did for me was cause a couple of sleepless nights worrying about the Christmas headache which I know will come any time now. This was not the author's intention but he was just close enough to what actually happens in this domicile anyway to put the fear of last-minute shopping into my bones.

So far, the best cartoon book to appear this season is Max Presents, a collection of funny pictures by P. L. Giovannetti.

The astonishing thing about this book is that it is the pictures themselves which really are humorous. This is a refreshing change from the New Yorker style cartoon where it is the situation which is amusing much more than the depiction of same.

COOK'S TOUR BACKSTAGE

Nova Scotia Dancer In Folies Bergeres

LES GIRLS, by Constance Tomkinson, with drawings by David Knight. Toronto: Little, Brown & Co. 274 pp. What could be more unlikely than a Canadian minister's daughter in the chorus of the Folies Bergeres? Yet this is the basis of the autobiography of Constance Tomkinson, whose wise and witty book has already aroused some critical huzzahs in the U.S.

The locale is prewar Europe. "Tommie," as she calls herself, is a Nova Scotian girl who had studied the dance under Martha Graham. Stage-struck, she left for England in the hope of getting a part on the West End boards. She ended up touring the capitals of Europe as a dancer, fighting off wolves in a variety of languages.

SURPRISES ALL ROUND
A member of the Millerettes, the Folies, and later "Basil's Beauties," she found—somewhat to her surprise—that her sister chorines were all British girls.

She liked them, and they liked her, though a bit dubious about her penchant for boning up on languages and carrying bits of bric-a-brac around the Continent in her luggage.

En route, "Tommie" recorded some shrewd and hilarious observations. She fell in love with a German sculptor, repelled swarms of amorous Italians, and contrived to dissuade a precise Dutchman with stories of her inability to cook, make dresses, or clean house.

Miss Tomkinson tells her tale with vast charm and a becoming modesty. As a Cook's Tour of

STAMP CORNER

By REG NAIRNE

"Unused" Canadian stamps of the 20c, 50c and $1 values have been offered from G.B. which are in reality cleaned used copies, re-gummed with a very white gum. These are no doubt specimens that have originally been cancelled with rubber stamps using violet, blue or green inks, instead of the standard black ink in general use. The colored inks are comparatively easily washed out with a chemical bleach.

Luckily re-gummed stamps are fairly easy to spot, as the gum always oozes up slightly onto the edges of the perforations. Mint stamps as bought at the post office are perforated after gumming so that the gum is cleanly cut by the perforating pins. Also, no re-gumming job ever has quite the same pristine appearance that you see on a new stamp.

As a final test there is always the ultra-violet light, which will show up the original cancellation on a cleaned stamp regardless of how immaculate it may appear to the eye.

It has also been reported that the 50-cent "Oil Well" stamp has been seen with the "C" overprint forged. This would be not too difficult to do, for many of the genuinely overprinted stamps show such variations that some of them might easily be taken for forgeries.

Early printings show a sharp clearly defined initial whereas later impressions show the letter in thick blunt type which looks as if it came from a different font.

Philatelists were beginning to collect these as separate varieties, but the post office department has furnished the information that the thick "G" is simply due to wear or over-inking. (These differences may be seen on all values—not only on the 50 cents of course.)

From Fact to Fiction Successful Transition

THE FLOOD, by Scott Young. Toronto: McClelland & Stewart Ltd. 223 pps. $3.50.

Scott Young, one of Canada's ablest young "fact writers," turned five years ago to fiction with the production of two "juveniles" based on hockey. Now he has reached another plateau in his development as a novelist with publication of "The Flood."

Evidence of both facets of the writer's talent are to be found in the new book. Mr. Young depends on his reportorial training for the facts of his story, but tells them against a romantic conflict in human relations, the mark of the fictioneer.

This is in actual fact an eye-witness story. Mr. Young went out to his old home town from the unlikely habitat of Omemee, Ont., to see the 1950 inundation. He ended up writing special dispatches for eastern publications and, incidentally, tossed sandbags as any patriotic Manitoban would do.

INCREASES STATURE

The result is an authentic and highly-readable book which will add to Scott Young's stature as a growing Canadian novelist.

The natural and human elements remain in conflict throughout the story. Mr. Young has chosen to tell it in terms of Martin Stewart, a young public-relations man, recently widowed, and the father of two appealing youngsters, Don and Mac.

Martin flies back from Edmonton when the water starts to rise. "A river was flooding," Mr. Young writes, "and a dike was needed to contain it, and man was back to an ancient simplicity he could not resist."

Working on the dike, Martin comes face-to-face once again with his first love, Martha Matheson, who has married the boss' son. With Martha is Elaine, a young sister-in-law who has come from Toronto for a visit and enters into the crisis.

Desperately lonely, and somewhat adrift from his son Don, Martin is caught up in a moral problem which engulfs him just as surely as the flood threatens to engulf the city.

Perhaps unconsciously, the human story takes precedence over the natural, with the result

Armistice Day parade for children between the ages of six and 12, organized by the Esquimalt Lions Club, will be held in the Esquimalt High School cafeteria from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Monday. School teachers have notified children of the event. There will be a costume parade with prizes offered and treats for the tots. The event is in lieu of the customary Halloween bonfire staged by the Esquimalt Lions.

Joel S. Goldsmith of Hawaii will give a public lecture on the "Art of Meditation" at the Empress Hotel Charlotte Room Thursday at 8 p.m. Mr. Goldsmith is well-known as the author of "The Infinite Way."

Belmont United Church H.C. group was host to young people of St. Aidan's United Church at a recent meeting when St. Aidan's minister, Rev. A. L. Avery spoke on "Saints, Sinners and Indians."

The meeting closed with a short worship service conducted by Sharon Williams and May Rainey.

SELECTIVE SERVICE DEMANDED BY LEGION

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Legion told the government Friday that recent events in Hungary and the Middle East support its demand for national selective service based on a system of national registration.

In a brief submitted to cabinet the Legion said it is "unrealistic and dangerous" for Canada to be the only NATO country, except Iceland, without a system of national selective service.

EX-MP CLAIMS IN BRITAIN

Russ Master Plan Foiled by Allies

CANTERBURY, Eng. (Reuters)—British and French armed action in Egypt foiled a Russian master plan to intervene militarily in the Middle East, former Conservative MP John Baker White said here Friday night.

The Russians had already named the plan "Operation Mena" because the Soviet command headquarters in Egypt were to be at the Mena House Hotel, near the Pyramids and adjacent to the Cairo West airfield, he told a United Nations Association meeting.

White said all his information came from unofficial sources but he is convinced it is true.

BRUTALLY SIMPLE
Saying the operation was to be "of brutal simplicity," White claimed these were the details: Russian army leaders appreciated that in the interests of self-preservation Israel would be bound sooner or later to attack one of her neighbors.

As the Israeli attack developed the Soviet government would have announced it was sending "volunteers" to help the Egyptians.

ALREADY SELECTED
In fact these "volunteers" were largely air force, tank and artillery experts—had been already selected and concentrated for many months past.

They would have been led by two generals—Maj.-Gen. P. I. Pinchuk, tank commander, and Lt.-Gen. F. E. Braiko, assistant chief of the Russian air staff. Another leader would have been Lt.-Gen.

coiled either to the right or to the left and many are decorated by ridges, grooves, knobs, spines or other projections depending upon the species.

While the outside surface may be rough or smooth, pitted by boring sponges or covered by encrustations of barnacles, bryozoans or seaweeds of many kinds, the inside is always smoothly coated with mother-of-pearl, possibly reaching its greatest perfection of color in the iridescent shell of the abalone.

The size, too, ranges from the shell of the tiniest land snail, no larger than a good-sized pinhead, yet perfect in all details, to the heavy shell of a conch as big as a man's head and a lot harder.

Such shells can take the mind back in history to the time when the rarer kinds were used as money as well as personal decoration by natives on this continent, or to the time when certain snails of the Mediterranean were used by the Phoenicians to make purple dye of great value.

The fact that some shells were made by snails that carry diseases and parasites of man does not detract from their beauty; the simplest spiral among them receives the admiration of all.

Engineer Demand Up 12 Per Cent Yearly
A recent survey of 700 industrial firms in Canada shows demand for engineers is increasing 12 per cent yearly, general secretary of the Engineering Institute of Canada, Dr. L. Austin Wright, said here today.

Immigrant engineers from Europe have dropped to one-half the numbers of 1953 when 1,900 came to Canada, he said. This is because of improved economic conditions and opportunities overseas.

Net loss of engineers to the United States is now small, he said, with many U.S. engineers coming to Canadian projects.

AAA Approves 85% of Area's Hotels, Motels

Higher Standards Lauded by Official

The Automobile Association of America has rated 85 per cent of the hotels and motor courts of Victoria and district as meeting its AAA qualification and standards.

AAA this week conducted an investigation of hotel and motel accommodations in the Greater Victoria area, Sooke and Shawnigan Lake.

Inspections were carried out by L. R. Knepper and Leonard Johnson, officials of AAA, which has its headquarters in Washington, D.C.

Approved establishments have blue-and-white triangle crest. The motels and hotels will also be listed in the AAA motor guide publication which has a circulation of 650,000.

POOR LIGHTING
AAA officials' chief criticism of Victoria motels was inadequate lighting systems.

George I. Warren, city tourist commissioner, said the inspection showed there has been a big improvement in the standard of accommodations since 1954 when AAA reported that 35 per cent of tourist establishments did not come up to its standards.

"Some motels which did not qualify last year have been approved this year," he said. "There has been a definite improvement all around."

Mr. Knepper said some of Victoria's auto courts equalled the best establishments to be found in the United States.

He praised their cleanliness. He was impressed with the landscaping of the motel sites.

"From a landscaping point of view, your auto courts are hard to beat," he said. "The grounds of some establishments are spacious."

He recommended that some motels improve their lighting. He said some auto courts are using bulbs which are too small and the lights were not placed in advantageous positions in the rooms.

Some establishments also lacked desk lights, he said.

Labor Report Clearly Shows Big B.C. Boom

B.C.'s booming economy is well illustrated in the 1955 report of the labor department, which shows payrolls and the working force at all-time maximums, and labor disputes near the minimum.

Estimated total payroll for the year was a massive $1,250,000,000, of which industry contributed $731,815,777. The province's working force was estimated at 268,000, a far cry from the 180,000 of 1939.

The workers of 1955 found life more pleasant than those of previous years. Average weekly wage for the province was $70.47, an all-time record, and it was earned in an average work week of 41.34 hours, lowest ever in the history of B.C.

According to statistics, oil refining and distributing is the most lucrative field for wage earners, since the average weekly wage is $79.36.

Other high-paying industries are pulp and paper manufacturing, $78.99; shipbuilding and boatbuilding, $77.51; smelting and concentrating, $76.11; construction, $74.96; and public utilities, $74.67.

FUR WORKER LOW
Lowest pay of the industries reported is the $54.82 taken home by the average fur and leather goods worker.

Minimum wages set by law for various industrial groups are exceeded by 43.5 per cent in the fruit and vegetable trade, lowest differential, and by 142.2 per cent for office workers.

Records show the largest single earning group to be the 24.55 per cent that earns between $60 and $70 per week. At the bottom of the scale are the 3.13 per cent who earn less than $25 per week, and at the top are 10.8 per cent who earn in excess of $100 per week.

More than 74 per cent of the B.C. working force earns more than $50 per week.

COURT ACTIONS
There were 62 court cases during the year concerning alleged violation of labor regulations, and 486 union applications for certification granted. Conciliation officers were appointed in 268 disputes, and 91 conciliation boards established.

There were 61 supervised strike votes in the province during the year.

There were 24 disputes leading to lost time, but the proportionate loss was low. The disputes involved 63 firms and 3,695 employees, and caused a loss of 44,020 working days, amounting to 0.051 per cent of the total working time of wage and salary earners.

Only other comparable year since 1945, when the cessation of hostilities and restrictions caused an upheaval in labor ranks, was 1949, when the time loss was only 0.042 of the total working. Highest was the 1.87 per cent of time lost in industrial disputes during 1946.

VANCOUVER (CP)—About 600 air cadets will parade here Tuesday when Lieutenant-Governor Frank M. Ross will present flying wings to six Vancouver cadets. Air Commodore A. D. Ross will award the Guthrie trophy to 135 Squadron, recently rated as the best in Canada.

VICTOR L. WHITE

New Sun Life Chief Here From India

By TONY DICKASON
Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada here has a new supervisor with a fine record of getting things done.

He is Victor L. White an Englishman fresh out from Bombay where the Sun shone until the government nationalized insurance services.

He handled all of southern India for the company which had a 60-year history there.

Mr. White and wife Zenta have been here about 10 days only, so he is now getting the "feel" of his work.

With Sun Life since 1950 the new supervisor is not altogether without training in Canada.

He spent a month at the huge Sun Life head office in Montreal a couple of years ago. Mr. White was assistant manager at the company's Southampton branch before being posted to the Far East.

Sun in Victoria was established about 1910.

HOLDS ARMY RANK
The new Sun Life chief has a fine war service record, winding up with the rank of acting lieutenant colonel. He's still a major with the Royal Army Reserve.

He enlisted from OTC in 1939, is a Dunkirk veteran and was with the desert army in North Africa where he was wounded. Patched up in four months he took part in the Salerno landing and then was in on D-Day invasion. He was attached to staff in Germany until 1950.

His service was with the famed Grenadier Guards.

RUSSIA-BORN
Wife Zenta has a background of considerable interest also. Russian-born, she was brought up in Latvia and fled to Germany when Russian revolutionary forces took over. Refusing to work for the Nazi, she was placed in a sort of concentration camp.

It was her husband-to-be who rescued her from there.

The colonel, by the way, was one of the first officers to see the notorious Belsen concentration camp where thousands perished.

Mr. White hasn't the kindest words for India's officials. Income tax is a straight 50 per cent, with no deductions. To get passage clearance this payment must be up to scratch—and it's difficult even then to get clearance.

"They are rather unscrupulous, full of bribery and corruption," he said.

It took him three months to get out of the country, and being presented with the necessary papers was then visited by a tax official who said "what are you going to give me? I could have held you up longer!"

He snorted, in a gentlemanly manner, at the recollection. India today, he theorized, wants "our money and brains," but not us.

Of Victoria: "I'd certainly rather live here."

He's buying a house in Fairfield and is currently in a motel. But most of his time is spent on the fourth floor of the old Times building, Fort Street, where Sun Life is located.

Pipeline Shares Leap Ahead

The United States presidential elections Tuesday caused only a ripple of excitement across the market. That factor had apparently been discounted in preceding weeks.

In general, prices changed little. But pipeline stocks leapt ahead as Middle East reports said the Suez Canal was blocked and some oil pipelines were damaged in the Iraq fields.

The busiest hour of the week was the first one Wednesday when investors scurried to buy stocks after Eisenhower's re-election. Trading quietened down, later, however, as investors again turned their attention to the Middle East.

TRANS-MOUNTAIN CLIMBS
Trans-Mountain featured pipeline issues traded on the Toronto stock exchange. It closed a week ago at $79 but Friday it had jumped to $91.75 and at one time during the day was at a high of $95.

One of the main reasons for the stocks soar was the announcement Wednesday that the company had declared its initial dividend and had made plans for a five-for-one split in shares.

Estimated earnings for the company's first nine months this year was double the amount for the same period in 1955.

Trading on Chatco Steel common shares was suspended by the TSE Tuesday for what the investigating staff termed "a high-pressure stock-selling campaign, operated from New York City, being carried on over the long distance telephones to United States investors."

The stock closed Monday at $16.12½, close to its year's high of $16.62½ reached last week. The stock reached its low May 10 at $3.30.

Of 799 issues traded, 363 declined, 268 advanced and 168 were unchanged. There were 106 lows for the year against 15 new highs.

Week's index changes at Montreal: Banks up 0.17 to 51.79; utilities up 0.3 to 138.8; industrials up 1.5 to 297.3; combined up 1.1 to 244.5; papers off 3.30 to 1438.32; golds off 0.74 to 76.24.

Ike's Win Rings 'Go Ahead' Bells

By WALTER BREEDE JR.
NEW YORK (AP) — Business news was colored this week by the U.S. presidential election and explosive new developments on the international front. Both had far-reaching implications.

The outlook shaped up something like this: With the GOP in the White House saddle for another four years, the federal administration would most probably continue its "hands off" policy toward private enterprise. There would be a minimum of interference with business by the executive branch.

EXPANSION GO-AHEAD
Corporations, assured of a "friendly climate" in the White House, would give the green light to major expansion programs. General business activity would remain at a high level.

Money and credit would continue "tight." Prices and wages would trend higher.

It was recognized, too, that administration policies toward business would be affected to no small degree by the Democratic majorities in Congress.

Congress was expected to push hard for individual income tax reductions.

FACE GAS FAMINE
Much greater uncertainties were raised this week by developments in the Middle East. Europe faced the drab prospect of a gasoline famine as the Arab nations halted deliveries of crude oil. Texas and Venezuela had ample reserves to fill the gap, but the oil would first have to be transported to Europe in tankers, and they were in critically short supply.

Meanwhile signs multiplied that it would take a lot longer to clear the Suez Canal than had been anticipated. Scarcely buying of some industrial material normally shipped through the canal boosted prices.

Brightest spot in the U.S. business picture this week was Detroit. Auto assembly lines were moving faster than at any time since mid-April; Chevrolet and Fisher body plants across the U.S. went on overtime.

PIONEER PRODUCER
Natural cement was first produced in Canada between 1830 and 1840 from Ottawa River limestone at Hull, Que.

Free Diabetes Tests Offered Here Next Week

An estimated 3,000 to 6,000 Victorians who are suffering from diabetes but are unaware of their ailment may be brought under early treatment following free tests which will be carried out here next week.

The tests will be conducted by the Canadian Diabetic Association in co-operation with local doctors and the Victoria Daily Times.

President of the Victoria District Branch, CDA, J. A. Neale says, although the disease is most prevalent among the middle-aged and overweight, many of the victims are under 15 years of age. It is most likely to occur if there has been previous history of the disease in the family.

District general practitioners have agreed to conduct free urinalyses at their offices between November 14 and 21 and testing stations will also be established at Royal Jubilee Hospital, St. Joseph's Hospital and at the City Health Centre on Cook Street.

If the presence of diabetes is established early enough, treatment is effective, and complications easily controlled. This applies in the case of people who feel well now but are unaware they are diabetics.

In Canada there are 250,000 known diabetics and perhaps an additional 300,000 potential sufferers.

Persons wishing to be tested should complete the form printed at right and present it with a urine sample to their family physician or one of the central testing stations. The sample should be contained in a clean glass bottle and the top tightly fastened. A two or three-ounce sample is required.

Tests will be carried out in the presence of the applicant and will be completed in a few minutes.

Following are the times when samples may be presented at testing stations:

Royal Jubilee, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, noon to 8:30 p.m.
St. Joseph's, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, noon to 9 p.m.
City Health Centre, Thursday and Friday, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Doctors' offices, Nov. 14 to 21 inclusive, regular office hours.

BETWEEN TIMES By MONTE ROBERTS

It may say Boeuf Bourguignon on the menu, but it's still stew on the plate.

Evacuation plan delayed one week, the paper says. Postmaster needs time to organize, the paper adds. Can't understand this. Why don't they just mail out the plans and save the postmaster all that trouble?

Shouldn't admit this, but I've had a sneak preview of the get-out-of-town-before-it's-too-late plan.

Turns out I am supposed to evacuate from View Royal to Darkest Sooke.

Turns out my boss is supposed to evacuate from HIS home to Deepest Sidney.

Just mentioned this as a warning to the residents of Darkest Sooke and Deepest Sidney. To where are THEY going to evacuate?

But the whole problem of evacuation is simple, as far as business and industry is concerned.

Business and industry will simply move to Nanaimo.

Most of it has already.

Can hardly wait until 8.15 p.m. Nov. 21. Place is Metchoin School. Occasion is meeting of the PTA. Subject will be:

"Are our schools producing well-rounded citizens?"

Answer is, yes.

Right here in our office we have some of the roundest citizens you ever did see.

It appears the QOR's will leave with the best wishes and sincere support of many hundreds of friends and relatives, and the anxious yearnings of the finance companies.

Victoria's cluster lights may be colored red, blue, green and yellow during the Yuletide season.

All we need is a neon sign reading "ill!" and we're in business.

The Social Credits are planning to move to Ottawa. Hardly seems far enough away.

And Solon Low says the Socreds will electrify the Canadian people.

Or did he say electrocute?

I have been asked about the two salmon on which I reported yesterday. How did I listen in on their conversation? I was asked.

Used my herring aid, I replied.

About 550 extra employees, 250 men and 300 women, will be hired to assist in the Christmas mailing rush at Victoria Post Office.

Postmaster R. F. Reid says preparations are under way for a record mailing period.

Preparing himself for a major assault on Juan de Fuca Strait in the week of Dec. 1, burlly Ben Laughren set out on a practice swim from Alber Head to Race Rocks area about 10:30 this morning.

He was accompanied by Bud Phillips in the cruiser Lili Marlene II. The 280-pound swimmer, who last summer swam from Port Angeles, Wash., to Beecher Bay on the southern tip of Vancouver Island, said water temperature was about 42 degrees.

Sudbury Gets New Tow Job

Victoria's deep-sea salvage tug Ss. Sudbury is steaming toward the liberty-type freighter Thunderbird, wallowing helplessly in mid-Pacific without power.

Island Tug and Barge Ltd., owners of the Sudbury, said today she was "several days" steaming from the crippled freighter.

The Thunderbird reported today she is in a fresh gale—winds of 40 to 47 miles per hour. The freighter, owned by Terrace Shipping Co. of New York, lost her propeller two days ago and radioed for aid.

The Sudbury was near the Japanese coast after completing a tow from Victoria to Yokohama, and later assisting a Portland tug in an attempt to salvage the Japanese motorship Nozima Maru.

The Nozima Maru sank in heavy seas.

The Sudbury has been away from her home port for more than two months. When she makes contact with the Thunderbird, she will tow the freighter to Seattle.

Two Injured In Overnight Traffic Mishaps

A sailor who drove his car into a power pole at Oswego and Superior early today pleaded guilty in city police court to careless driving and was fined $35.

Orville Holland, HMCS Naden, was fined an additional $25 for failing to have a B.C. driver's licence.

A passenger in the car, Elmer Craig, 22, of 117 Clarence, received head and face cuts requiring treatment at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Damage to the car was estimated at $400. The accident occurred at 4:30 a.m.

Another traffic mishap at 7:40 p.m. Friday night motorcyclist Ignatz Wichko, 51, of 1334 Pembroke, suffered a broken leg and was admitted to Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Police said Wichko's bike crashed into the rear of an automobile stopped in traffic at Pandora and Camosun. Driver Ethel Fletcher, 2377 Foul Bay, said she stopped to let pedestrians cross the intersection.

Commanding officer Lt.-Col. R. F. MacKay said he will be handicapped to carry out regular training, but will be able to devote more attention to the

New Order Allows Younger Volunteers

Detachment of riflemen from Second Battalion Queen's Own Rifles of Canada starts its journey from Camp Gordon Head to the Suez Canal zone Sunday at 3:30 p.m. from CPR wharf.

Earlier plans to fly more than 200 troops and officers to join the First Battalion QORs in Calgary this afternoon and Sunday morning were cancelled due to weather conditions.

The Queen's Own were picked as Canada's contribution to a UN-sponsored international police force in the turbulent Middle East. They sail from Halifax on or before Nov. 21.

Gordon Head troops will go by ferry to Vancouver and from there to Calgary by rail. It was expected the reinforced First Battalion would leave Calgary as soon as possible.

Happiest men at Camp Gordon Head Friday afternoon were 18-year-olds, suddenly permitted by a change in qualifications to volunteer for Middle East duty.

They scrambled for the battalion orderly room to submit their names as soon as officers spread the word around camp that men of the full age of 18 would be accepted.

Previous orders restricted volunteers to single men 19 years old and married men over 21.

FILLING QUOTA It had been anticipated the Second Battalion quota of 222 men could be filled without difficulty according to the first order, but numbers were lacking because of medical and age restrictions.

About 40 of the Gordon Head draft are 18 years old, many with only a few months service.

First order for men was accompanied by a requirement for five officers who were named Thursday night and were ready to go Friday afternoon when a new order cut the figure to one.

He is Capt. Dan Woodbury of Winnipeg, who served in Europe with the First Battalion QORs since the Second World War. He is a veteran of the European campaign in 1944-45.

INOCULATION Troops were given pre-embarkation X-rays this morning at HMCS Naden hospital, then returned to Camp Gordon Head for inoculation shots.

A skeleton battalion remains at Gordon Head. Some riflemen are 17 years old, disappointed at being "left out of it."

Even the famed Battalion Bugles have dwindled to practically nothing since most members are qualified riflemen included in the draft.

Commanding officer Lt.-Col. R. F. MacKay said he will be handicapped to carry out regular training, but will be able to devote more attention to the

ASK The TIMES

Q.—How did the game of bridge get its name? L.L.

A.—Your question opens a field much too broad to be covered in the space of this column. Philologists for many years have found perplexity in answering that question and been unable to trace some of the paths of inquiry to a satisfactory end. To come into possession of what is known on the subject and to form your own opinions on the various theories that exist, it is suggested you visit one of the chief libraries. The Provincial Library is able to show you a large amount of literature in the field about which you inquire.

Q.—What is the present population of Charlottetown? T.L.D.

A.—The federal census of June, 1956, recorded the population of the capital city of Prince Edward Island as 16,446. At the 1951 census it was 15,887.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

Business Pays 49% of Total Taxes in Victoria, Says City Businessman

(The controversial question of whether Victoria businesses are paying enough money to the city in taxes has been analyzed for the Times by Hugh R. Stephen, a city businessman. The issue was raised in City Council by Ald. Don Smith who contends the city could get a great deal more revenue from business. Mr. Stephen takes issue with Ald. Smith. Mr. Stephen is vice-president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and also a member of the Town Planning Board, but in this instance has written as a private businessman and not attempting to express views of these organizations.)

By H. R. STEPHEN

Regardless of the validity of Alderman Smith's contention that licence fees paid by city business firms are insufficient, his remarks have, unfortunately, left the impression that business as a whole is not contributing its fair share to city revenues.

I am sure that so experienced a businessman as Alderman Smith would be among the first to correct that impression. However, since he has not, to my knowledge, so far done so may I present the following facts for his perusal, and for those others who appear all too eager to scold business at every opportunity as the bad boy of the community. I am indebted for these figures to the annual report by the municipal manager for the year 1955 and to the Capital Region Planning Board.

Total taxes collected on land and improvements in the city last year amounted to $3,389,790. On page nine of the municipal manager's report appears the following breakdown in percentage form of the various classes of assessment:

Residential ——— 56.80% Industrial ——— 3.93% Commercial ——— 39.03% Other ——— 24%

It is only fair to add that in the commercial figure above are included some apartments which, for the purposes of this argument, were better classed as residential.

Applying the above percentages to the tax total already given we arrive at the following:

Taxes paid by residential taxpayers ——— $1,925,400

Taxes paid by business taxpayers ——— $1,456,253

To this last figure must be added $83,972 raised from business through the so-called machinery tax and $304,594 raised from business through trades licences, making a grand total paid by business of $1,844,819 or 49% of the total taxes raised.

The Capital Region Planning Board has worked out for me a figure showing the percentage of the total land area of the city occupied by business premises of all kinds. That figure is 15% and again it includes apartments which offsets

We are therefore faced with the incontrovertible fact that business, which occupies only 15 per cent of the city's space, is footing 49 per cent of the bill! The Wicked Uncle is beginning to look suspiciously like Santa Claus.

In addition may I point out a further simple fact so frequently overlooked. Whereas the householder makes use of the full range of city services, business, as such, utilizes only a portion of those services. For instance, business uses neither schools nor parks and makes no charge on these services, although its employees do. But they also pay taxes as householders.

The truth, distasteful as it may be to those who cannot or will not face it, is simply that in Victoria business is, to a large extent, subsidizing the taxes paid by the residential taxpayer. Or, to put this in more palatable form—if the land presently occupied by business were occupied instead by residences the present tax rate on existing residential property would be vastly increased.

This is not a popular fact to present. The truth very rarely is popular. But I know of no responsible official at City Hall who will deny it.

To those of us who, in one way or another, are endeavouring to encourage business development in the city the recurring attacks upon business by some of its misinformed critics are, to say the least, discouraging. The above facts are presented solely to set the record straight.

As I have said I am not disputing Alderman Smith's contention that there exists anomalies in Victoria's licence fee structure. However, I do not believe it has been made sufficiently clear that it is only a question of anomaly and not of overall underpayment. I have it on excellent authority, for instance, that were Vancouver's business tax substituted for our present licence fees the city would be out of pocket by many thousands of dollars. This clearly means that while some classes of business may be underpaying, the majority are overpaying.

The whole problem of business licences is so complex that it is obviously a matter for provincial rather than municipal legislation. The present government has most wisely recognized and implemented the equalization of assessments throughout the province. The next step is surely equalization of licence fees. And who is in a better position to press this point with the government than Alderman Smith?

WORDS OF SIGNIFICANCE

(This is another in a series of weekly discussions with ministers of Greater Victoria churches who will be asked to comment on the Biblical passage which holds the most significance for them.)
"It is more blessed to give than to receive."

"This divine maxim, so familiar to us today, was originally a few words spoken by the Lord Jesus" and used later by the Apostle Paul," said Rev. Petrina C. McClenahan, co-pastor of Foursquare Church in Esquimalt.

"Certainly none of us can deny the joy of being the recipient of an act of kindness bestowed on us in the form of a gift.
"God has made us all dependent upon His giving and also mutually dependent upon one another, but giving, like mercy, is twice blessed—it blesseth him that gives, and him that takes."
"The greater blessing in giving will not be felt if we give reluctantly," Mrs. McClenahan said.

"So often we give gifts because they are expected. We pay compliments for the sake of being polite. We give to charities under pressure of public opinion. We lend to our neighbor and wish he had not asked us."

"Giving must be simple and sincere if it is to be blessed. There must be, even in a small measure, the pain of sacrifice.
"When we give without this feeling we do not feel, to the depths, the joyfulness of the 'more blessed'."

"A supreme blessedness was reached when God gave to the world His only Son, but each of us has something to give and must give it. We, too, will be blessed if we give of ourselves that others might receive."

REGINA — Saskatchewan Roughriders led Edmonton Eskimos 6-1 at half time today in the first game of the Western Canada football final. It is a best-of-three series.

HAMILTON (CP)—Quarterback Sam Etcheverry threw three touchdown passes to lead Montreal Alouettes to a 30-21 victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the opening game of their Big Four football final today.

The Alouettes, aiming for their third straight Big Four title and the right to represent the East again in the Grey Cup, will carry a nine-point lead into the second encounter of the two-game, total-points series. It will be played in Montreal next Saturday.

Except for the opening minutes, the Alouettes led throughout the tensely-fought game, played in 40-degree weather before a crowd of 17,000.

Alouettes scored four touchdowns, three converts and a field goal. The Tiger-Cats were held to three touchdowns and a single.

SHARP AS EVER

Etcheverry, his rifle arm was as sharp as ever, fired touchdown passes to Red O'Quinn, Bob James and Joey Pal. Hal Patterson raced around the end for 25 yards for their other touchdown.

Bill Bewley converted three of the four six-pointers and in addition kicked a 36-yard field goal.

The three Hamilton touchdowns came off passes. Davey West, former Calgary Stampeders' halfback, scored the first two on tosses from quarterback Tony Curcio. Hal Waggoner pulled in another.

Steve Oeschuk converted two of the touchdowns and also kicked a single. Winner of the Montreal-Hamilton series will meet the winner of the best-of-three series between Regina Roughriders and the Dominion champion Edmonton Eskimos for the Grey Cup championship in Toronto on Nov. 24.

SCs Reject Revision
Of Car Insurance

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Times Political Reporter

VANCOUVER—The B.C. Social Credit League convention today rejected a Chilliwack resolution asking the government to bring about a revision of auto insurance rates.

The resolution called for "a just and adequate rate and coverage."

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said B.C. has no control over auto insurance rates, as these are fixed by the companies concerned.

A resolution from Cowichan-Newcastle asking the government to investigate dental costs in B.C. was tabled on the motion of Health Minister Eric Martin.

"This resolution is about a year behind the times," Mr. Martin said. "We have already instituted a full inquiry into this matter."

The conference tabled a resolution from Comox asking that dental technicians be allowed to make dental plates, execute repairs, and deal directly with the general public.

This afternoon the conference debated a motion from Saanich asking the government to amend the Motor-Vehicle Act to make it compulsory for each licensee to carry a minimum of $20,000 public liability insurance.

The convention unanimously supported a resolution that the government continue its present policy of refusing recognition to the Communist government of China.

"This refers to diplomatic relations, not trade relations," Attorney-General Bonner said. "We approve a policy of refusing diplomatic recognition to China, but we are in favor of trade with China."

"We shall have to trade with the world sooner or later. It may as well be sooner."

'Middle Course' Vital for U.S.

Says Atomic Chief

WASHINGTON (AP)—Thomas E. Murray, atomic energy commissioner, said today the United States is in danger of making "the fatal error . . . of allowing nuclear weapons to dictate policy."

Instead, he said, "military policies must control our weapons program," and the U.S. must find "a middle course, the road of justice," between any total war in the nuclear age and abandonment of all nuclear weapons.

First Contingent
Now at Italy Base

LONDON (UP)—A 6,000-man United Nations police force began converging on Naples in Italy today for duty in the Suez Canal zone as quickly as Egypt agrees.

Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser still had not given consent.

He said the government would study the UN resolution setting up the international force "word by word" because Egypt did not intend "to be taken in by deceit after they were unable to take us by force."

DANES FIRST

First to depart for the Naples staging area were about 50 Danish soldiers, airlifted by two U.S. Airforce transport planes from Karup airfield in Jutland in mid-forenoon. Another U.S. Airforce plane picked up 50 Norwegian soldiers at Fornebu airfield, Oslo, and left for Naples in early afternoon.

Other U.S. transports were landing at Bogota, Colombia, to begin the airlift of about 1,200 Colombian soldiers. Colombia's thin mountain air reduced the payload of the big Super-Constellations to about 50 and their equipment each.

Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Finland, Colombia, Canada and India are contributing forces to the UN police units, with the larger shares coming from Colombia, India and Canada, who will contribute a full battalion each. The Scandinavian forces are expected to have a combined total of a battalion. Finland's contribution was to be made strictly on the basis of volunteers and the number was undetermined.

In Naples, Italians and the U.S. Navy were working swiftly to prepare for the first arrivals expected about 9 p.m. (noon, Victoria time).

Russia Will Permit
Egypt 'Volunteers'

LONDON (CP)—Russia said tonight permission will be granted for trained volunteers to fight on the side of Egypt unless British, French and Israeli troops withdraw from Egyptian soil.

The Russians raised anew the threat of the Middle East turning into another Korea as advance units of a UN international police force headed for Naples—last stop before actually setting foot in the Suez Canal area to take on the task of keeping peace in the Middle East.

The British, French and

Israelis already have said they will withdraw. But the time element—both for the withdrawal and the possible sending of Russian volunteers—remained uncertain.

In Washington, the U.S. state department said it would bar volunteers—as far as it is legally able to do so—from fighting on either side in Egypt.

Applications 'In Thousands'

A Soviet foreign ministry spokesman in Moscow told a press conference:

"Responsible organs of the Soviet government will raise no obstacles to the departure of these citizen volunteers" if foreign troops remain in Egypt.

(At Cairo, an Egyptian embassy spokesman had said a short time earlier the number of applications from Soviet volunteers "now runs into several thousands.")

The announcement, which the Russian spokesman identified as a Tass News Agency statement, did not set a time for withdrawal of the British, French and Israeli forces.

The Moscow statement said: "Soviet government circles express satisfaction at the British and French acceptance of the cease-fire. While welcoming this latest move they express apprehension lest the move should have the ulterior motive of obtaining a breathing space for their troops."

Woman 'Fair' After Alberni Car Mishap

PORT ALBERNI—An elderly woman was reported in "fair condition" today at West Coast General Hospital, following injuries suffered Friday night when she was in collision with a car driven by Joseph Calwell.

Mrs. Alfred West, 213 Seventh Avenue South, was hurt while crossing Beaver Creek Road toward Alberni Athletic Hall to attend a basketball game. She suffered a broken arm and severe facial injuries.

Nutting Replaced

LONDON (Reuters)—Cmdr. Allan Noble, 48-year-old parliamentary under-secretary for Commonwealth relations, was appointed Friday night minister of state at the foreign office to replace Anthony Nutting, who resigned because he disagreed with British government policy in the Middle East.

Nutting announced his resignation from his post, the No. 2 foreign office position, last week.

Lord John Hope, joint parliamentary under-secretary at the foreign office, replaced Noble at the Commonwealth relations office and was succeeded in turn by a Parliament back-bench member, William David Ormsby-Gore.

GUEST SPEAKER at Esquimalt Foursquare Church Monday at 7:30 p.m. will be Rev. Harold Chalfant of Los Angeles. He is missionary field representative of the International Church of the Four-square Gospel. He will show colored slides of mission fields throughout the world, and display artifacts from the Middle East, Africa, Europe and South and Central America.

U.S. Jet Bomber Crashes in Flames On Test Flight

DOVER, Del. (AP)—The U.S. Navy's Seamaster, an experimental jet attack bomber valued at $5,600,000, broke up in flight Friday and crashed in flames in northern Delaware. Its civilian crew of four bailed out safely.

Winch Called Communist By Solon Low

VANCOUVER (CP)—Solon Low, national leader of the Social Credit party, Friday night repeated a House of Commons statement that he thinks CCF Member of Parliament Harold Winch is a Communist.

(Mr. Winch, asked later to comment, said he is "not surprised. . . . You can expect abuse from such a man and such a party. He does not understand the situation. I think people here know me well enough to realize how foolish his words really are.")

Mr. Low was asked by a student questioner during a forum at the University of British Columbia whether he believes calling opponents Communists is a "good political technique."

He replied: "If they really are Communists."

The questioner said: "I was in the House of Commons, August 15, when you called Harold Winch a Communist. Do you really believe he is?"

"Yes, I do," the Social Credit leader said.

Bonner Chosen to 'Mastermind' Sacred Federal Election Drive

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Times Political Reporter

VANCOUVER (CP)—Attorney-General Robert Bonner of British Columbia is to "mastermind" a Social Credit "march on Ottawa" in the 1957 federal elections it was announced here Friday.

Solon Low, national leader of the Social Credit party, declared himself fit to lead the party. Premier Bennett of British Columbia said he will support him.

But, Mr. Low told the B.C. Social Credit League's annual convention, Mr. Bonner has been named chairman of the national executive's special committee to map out the "on-to-Ottawa" campaign.

"We are tremendously thankful to have a young man of his great capabilities," the national leader said.

NO RIVALRY AT TOP

To a gathering of more than 600 persons exuberantly confident about Social Credit prospects in the next federal election, Mr. Bennett made it plain that he and Mr. Low, veteran Social Credit member of Parliament from Peace River, are not rivals for the leadership.

HEART ATTACK

Mr. Low drew a parallel between his health and that of President Eisenhower. Both suffered heart attacks three months apart in 1955.

At one time," said Mr. Low, referring to a heart attack he suffered last January, "there was some doubt as to whether I would be able to carry on. Today, thanks to your prayers, your faith and your goodwill, I am ready and able to lead our party to victory."

Mr. Bennett said that on analysis of the vote in the Sept. 19 provincial election, "We find we can win every single B.C. chevron."

federal seat (22) in the election when it comes next June."

Referring to Social Credit's large-scale onslaught on Saskatchewan, which won only two seats, Mr. Bennett said:

"If gaining 100,000 votes in Saskatchewan is defeat then we want more defeats like Saskatchewan."

REVENUE MINISTER HERE

Sacred March East 'Optimistic'—McCann

Revenue Minister James J. McCann said here Friday Social Crediters are "optimistic" in thinking they can "march on to Ottawa" at next summer's general election.

"No one knows anything about them east of Saskatchewan," he said. "They are in power only provincially, in Alberta and B.C."

Dr. McCann arrived in Victoria Friday afternoon and will leave Sunday, following inspection of customs and excise and income tax offices.

He was confident the Liberal party will be re-elected federally.

But he added "Social Credit might sometime" beat the Conservatives to form a House opposition.

Buoyancy of Canadian business was shown this year by the highest gross national product in history, higher than anticipated, he said.

"Increased revenue from deductions at the source show more people now are gainfully employed than ever before, and fewer unemployed."

Victoria will have facilities as fine as any Canadian city with completion next year of alterations to the customs and excise building, he said.

Victoria Sacred Named B.C. Vice-President

VANCOUVER — Victorian Dick Lawrence was elected Friday to a two-year term as second vice-president of the B.C. Social Credit League.

Delegates to the league convention here named Walter J. Smith, Kamloops, first vice-president, and James McKenzie, Dawson Creek, third vice-president.

President N. J. Murphy has one more year to serve of his two-year term.

NEWSWOMAN HERE

Oil Splurge Little Help In Peace Area

Mrs. Margaret Murray, who with her husband owns and edits the 1,600-circulation Alaska Highway News at Fort St. John, isn't too happy about the big investment in the surrounding Peace River bloc in oil and gas.

She said here Friday that though close to $100,000,000 has been invested since 1950, direct benefits to the area economy have been slight.

"Some of the money catches on, but not too much," she said. "You must remember all rigs and many of the crews are brought in from elsewhere."

At present there are six oil wells and 35 gas wells producing in the area.

Mrs. Murray, who ran and was defeated as an independent candidate in the September provincial election, has been connected with publications nearly 45 years, and has edited three weekly newspapers along the Pacific Great Eastern route.

Her husband was a former MLA here and one-time editor of the Vancouver Sun.

She's visiting here investigating possibility of establishing a trade school at Fort St. John for training of printers as "the typographical craft is in a bad way at present. There is a critical shortage."

Canada's Olympic Team Off Today

VANCOUVER (CP)—Sixty-five members of Canada's Olympic Games team was scheduled to leave by plane for Australia at 3 p.m. today.

The second and final contingent of 56 members will be flown from here next Tuesday.

Friday night the team was given a send-off celebration at the University of British Columbia gym. Senator J. D. deB. Farris gave the salute to the team and Frank Read, coach of the rowing team, replied.

Opinions Are Various On Color Imprimature

This is the second part of a two-part article by Mr. Savery on methods of priming and laying in grounds. First part appeared on these pages last Saturday.

Let us briefly examine the use of colored grounds as opposed to the use of plain white. The writer at various times has failed to find any significant increase in luminosity with the use of a white ground as compared with one tinted in neutral grey, brown or yellow.

If we use brighter color of the ground the whole tonality of the painting must be carefully considered. As a general rule it is more effective to use contrasting color schemes between the ground and the over painting, viz. cool color over a warm tone although there is nothing against the painting of warm color on warm color or cold color on cool hues to produce painterly effects.

Contrary to the general opinion red grounds do not always lower the tonality of a painting as will be seen in the works of both Goya and Rubens who painted, especially in the case of the first master, exclusively on such a ground, which was very favorable to the technique of scrambling to which the artist was prone for various effects.

SAND ROUGH SURFACE

Vermilion is perhaps the red most useful and suitable for priming for it requires little oil as it produces a lean paint, but one of great luminosity. Having a rather horny rough surface on drying one must sand well to bring the texture to a suitable painting quality.

Yellow, the favored ground of the Flemish masters, strongly affects the over-painting tones tending to produce glowing effects in the warm colors and bright sunny greens from transparent blues. In fact, the writer has found that strongly tinted yellow priming imparts a type of radiance to thinly applied dark color passages.

The Old Masters of painting made a practice of tinting white lead with yellow lake and we may approximate this by strongly tinting the body color of white lead with cadmium yellow. However, if a more brilliant tone is required tint the body color ground with mays yellow.

Instead of priming the ground with bright rich color there is often good reason for using neutral indefinite colors as they often remove the need for under-painting and in portrait painting this is certainly the case.

A properly selected neutral grey or brown-grey ground has the tonality of grisaille and any under-painting desired, whatever the color, may be produced on a neutral toned ground with ease and the progress or rapid work is facilitated to a remarkable degree.

Commercial on next year's telecast of the Academy Awards presentation will be toned down considerably from last year. The Academy and the auto sponsor have agreed they will eliminate "irritating" commercials from the March 27 show. Nominations for the awards will be made in February and will not be televised.

BOOK TALK

By JAMES SCOTT

Jingle Bells Sounding Along Publishers' Row

Harbingers of headaches, writer's cramp, tender ribs, sore feet and 37 more shopping days before Christmas are beginning to appear along Book Row. Each year the trade produces a certain number of books which are frankly designed to appeal to the frantic Christmas shopper. Quite often these are very good books too.

They fall into three main categories: 1, the book which has Jolly Old St. Nick on the dust jacket and is blatantly about Christmas or some phase of it; 2, the very, very fancy picture book, usually cartoons, produced, on the theory I suppose, that even if you're not sure the recipient of your book can read he at least will enjoy the pictures; and 3, the obvious best-seller, the book everybody will soon be talking about and maybe even reading.

All three categories are represented in this week's talk. Edward Streeter's Merry Christmas, Mr. Baxter is Christmas-shopper bait if I ever saw it right from the title and the gent in the raincoat on the cover through to the last page. Nevertheless, it is a nicely amusing book which is what I would expect from the author of Father of the Bride, Mr. Hobbs' Vacation, etc.

This May Start You Worrying

This one is about the pre-Christmas vicissitudes of a New Yorker father and grandfather. It is suave, just corny enough, and just accurate enough to provide easy, humorous reading. Perhaps it is a better book to read after Christmas than before because what it did for me was cause a couple of sleepless nights worrying about the Christmas headache which I know will come any time now.

This was not the author's intention but he was just close enough to what actually happen in this domicile anyway to put the fear of last-minute shopping into my bones.

So far, the best cartoon book to appear this season is Max Presents, a collection of funny pictures by P. L. Giovannetti. The astonishing thing about this book is that it is the pictures themselves which really are humorous. This is a refreshing change from the New Yorker style cartoon where it is the situation which is amusing much more than the depiction of same.

Moving in the world he knows best—the American upper middle-class—and tinting it a bit with the International Set, he has spun a yarn which is wholly engrossing for the reader who likes lots to happen (without being melodramatic) and who also likes to feel he is rubbing close to the basic complexities of modern man.

This book has a cast of 10 main characters who, for various reasons, are taking a de luxe tour through the high spots of Europe—Berlin, Vienna, Rome, Paris, the Riviera, etc. Each character has his or her own particular problem, fascinating in itself.

With virtuoso skill Mr. Wakeman keeps all the threads of each plot firmly in hand, weaves them all together into a tightly-knit novel and provides some of the best pure entertainment you are likely to see this year.

On top of this, he has developed a prose so smooth that while it may not be artistically exuberant it is properly unobtrusive. Anybody with a slight touch of sophistication—or pretensions to it—will like this one.

COOK'S TOUR BACKSTAGE

Nova Scotia Dancer In Folies Bergeres

LES GIRLS, by Constance Tomkinson, with drawings by David Knight. Toronto: Little, Brown & Co. 274 pp.

What could be more unlikely than a Canadian-minister's daughter in the chorus of the Folies Bergeres? Yet this is the basis of the autobiography of Constance Tomkinson, whose wise and witty book has already aroused some critical huzzahs in the U.S.

The locale is prewar Europe. "Tommie," as she calls herself, is a Nova Scotian girl who had studied the dance under Martha Graham. Stage-struck, she left for England in the hope of getting a part on the West End boards.

She ended up touring the capitals of Europe as a dancer, fighting off wolves in a variety of languages.

SURPRISES ALL ROUND
A member of the Millerettes, the Folies, and later "Basil's Beauties," she found—somewhat to her surprise—that her sister chorines were all British girls.

She liked them, and they liked her, though a bit dubious about her penchant for boning up on languages and carrying bits of bric-a-brac around the Continent in her luggage.

En route, "Tommie" records some shrewd and hilarious observations. She fell in love with a German sculptor, repelled swarms of amorous Italians, and contrived to dissuade a precise Dutchman with stories of her inability to cook, make dresses, or clean house.

Miss Tomkinson tells her tale with vast charm and a becoming modesty. As a Cook's Tour of backstage Europe, "Les Girls" is unique entertainment, full of fun and a romp to read.—J.S.K.

STAMP CORNER

BY REG NAIKNE

"Unused" Canadian stamps of the 20c, 50c and $1 values have been offered from G.B. which are in reality cleaned used copies, re-gummed with a very white gum. These are no doubt specimens that have originally been cancelled with rubber stamps using violet, blue or green inks, instead of the standard black ink in general use. The colored inks are comparatively easily washed out with a chemical bleach.

Luckily re-gummed stamps are fairly easy to spot, as the gum always oozes up slightly onto the edges of the perforations. Mint stamps as bought at the post office are perforated after gumming so that the gum is cleanly cut by the perforating pins. Also, no re-gumming job ever has quite the same pristine appearance that you see on a new stamp.

As a final test there is always the ultra-violet light, which will show up the original cancellation on a cleaned stamp regardless of how immaculate it may appear to the eye.

It has also been reported that the 50-cent "Oil Well" stamp has been seen with the "G" overprint forged. This would be not too difficult to do, for many of the genuinely overprinted stamps show such variations that some of them might easily be taken for forgeries.

Early printings show a sharp clearly defined initial whereas later impressions show the letter in thick blunt type which looks as if it came from a different font.

Philatelists were beginning to collect these as separate varieties, but the post office department has furnished the information that the thick "G" is simply due to wear or over-inking. (These differences may be seen on all values—not only on the 50 cents of course.)

From Fact to Fiction Successful Transition

THE FLOOD, by Scott Young. Toronto: McClelland & Stewart Ltd. 223 pp. $3.50.

Scott Young, one of Canada's ablest young "fact writers," turned five years ago to fiction with the production of two "juveniles" based on hockey. Now he has reached another plateau in his development as a novelist with publication of "The Flood."

Evidences of both facets of the writer's talent are to be found in the new book. Mr. Young depends on his reportorial training for the facts of his story, but tells them against a romantic conflict in human relations, the mark of the fictioneer.

This is in actual fact an eye-witness story. Mr. Young went out to his old home town from the unlikely habitat of Omeme, Ont., to see the 1950 inundation. He ended up writing special dispatches for eastern publications and, incidentally, tossed sandbags as any patriotic Manitoban would do.

INCREASES STATURE

The result is an authentic and highly-readable book which will add to Scott Young's stature as a growing Canadian novelist.

The natural and human elements remain in conflict throughout the story. Mr. Young has chosen to tell it in terms of Martin Stewart, a young public-relations man, recently widowed, and the father of two appealing youngsters, Don and Mac.

Martin flies back from Edmonton when the water starts to rise. "A river was flooding," Mr. Young writes, "and a dike was needed to contain it, and man was back to an ancient simplicity he could not resist."

Working on the dike, Martin comes face-to-face once again with his first love, Martha Matheson, who has married the boss' son. With Martha is Elaine, a young sister-in-law who has come from Toronto for a visit and enters into the crisis.

Desperately lonely, and somewhat adrift from his son Don, Martin is caught up in a moral problem which engulfs him just as surely as the flood threatens to engulf the city.

Perhaps unconsciously, the human story takes precedence over the natural, with the result that the flood never seems quite as terrible—and as interesting—as the emotional drama.

Nevertheless, it all comes right in the end, with Martin restoring his familiar relationships and Martha appreciating the dangers of breaking the domestic dikes. Mr. Young writes of these things with sensitivity, perception and style, which bodes well for his future endeavors in this direction.—J.S.K.

Hi-Jinks Hit Lord Mayor's Procession

LONDON (Reuters) — The traditional Lord Mayor's parade had an uninvited exhibit Friday when an ancient automobile manned by students followed the end of the mile-long procession.

Cheered on by 100 students running behind it, the car, a 1902 two-cylinder Renault, was out of character with the theme of the procession — "Aluminium, newest of the world's basic metals."

After a brief, hilarious run through London's business district, three mounted policemen, diverted the ancient car and students down a side street.

Riding in his heavy scarlet and gilt state chariot drawn by six dapple greys, the new Lord Mayor, Sir George Cullum Welch, was preceded by military bands and floats demonstrating the functions of aluminium.

One of the floats carried Donald Campbell's jet racing speedboat Bluebird, which last September travelled at 253.3 miles an hour to break the world's water speed record.

'Anti-Labor' Charge Fired

VANCOUVER (CP)—Health Minister Eric Martin was branded "anti-labor" Friday by delegates attending the convention of Hospital Employees' Union Local 170.

In a heated attack on the minister union business manager Bill Black said "Mr. Martin talks out of both sides of his mouth at one time."

He claimed that during the election campaign the minister said B.C. hospital insurance service will pick up the tab for increased hospital workers' wages.

Mr. Black then read a letter, signed by Mr. Martin, which he claimed indicated Mr. Martin is not willing to lift the "freeze" order which has been imposed since 1953.

ANIMALS AROUND US

Rare Shells Once Used for Money

By DR. G. CLIFFORD CARL

Those creatures that have a single shell are called univalves or gastropods and the best known members are the snails, which have a typically coiled shell.

However, limpets and slugs also belong to this group yet in the former the shell is a simple cone in shape and in the latter the shell is a tiny remnant buried in the body or it is totally absent. The term gastropod then is perhaps the best general name for this group since it means "stomach-foot" which just about describes all of those molluscs which have a large foot enclosing a stomach.

The shell, nevertheless, still remains as the most conspicuous feature displayed by most of the members of this group and its purpose seems to be protection of the soft body. At any rate in the limpets or Chinese hats found on the rocks at low tide and in all the true snails the shell either completely covers the body or the portions which project can be drawn inside when danger threatens.

SAVES MOISTURE

Undoubtedly also the shell helps to conserve moisture especially when the animal is exposed at low tide. Some marine and fresh water snails also are provided with a plug or operculum which closes the entrance to the shell when the inmate retires. This serves a double purpose of keeping predators and disturbers of the peace out and also of keeping the moisture in.

Some land snails seal up the trap door with a mucous secretion which makes a watertight plug so that the animal can hibernate or aestivate for a long period of time. One specimen of African snail which was on display in the British Museum for many years in the dried state dramatically came to life one day when a technician put the shell in water to clean it.

The opercula or plugs used by some marine snails are made of either horny material or limy material or sometimes both. In the whelks or oyster drills, periwinkles and moon snails the operculum is horny and shows lines of growth corresponding to those on the shell.

In the turban snails found on the west coast of Vancouver Island and on other exposed beaches the opercula are calcareous.

AAA Approves 85% of Area's Hotels, Motels

Higher Standards Lauded by Official

The Automobile Association of America has rated 85 per cent of the hotels and motor courts of Victoria and district as meeting its AAA qualification and standards.

AAA this week conducted an investigation of hotel and motel accommodations in the Greater Victoria area, Sooke and Shawnigan Lake.

Inspections were carried out by L. R. Knepper and Leonard Johnson, officials of AAA, which has its headquarters in Washington, D.C.

Approved establishments have blue-and-white triangle crest. The motels and hotels will also be listed in the AAA motor guide publication which has a circulation of 650,000.

POOR LIGHTING

AAA officials' chief criticism of Victoria motels was inadequate lighting systems.

George L. Warren, city tourist commissioner, said the inspection showed there has been a big improvement in the standard of accommodations since 1954 when AAA reported that 35 per cent of tourist establishments did not come up to its standards.

"Some motels which did not qualify last year have been approved this year," he said. "There has been a definite improvement all around."

Mr. Knepper said some of Victoria's auto courts equalled the best establishments to be found in the United States.

He praised their cleanliness. "He was impressed with the landscaping of the motel sites."

"From a landscaping point of view, your auto courts are hard to beat," he said. "The grounds of some establishments are spacious."

He recommended that some motels improve their lighting. "He said some auto courts are using bulbs which are too small and the lights were not placed in advantageous positions in the rooms. Some establishments also lacked desk lights, he said.

VICTOR L. WHITE

New Sun Life Chief Here From India

By TONY DICKASON
Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada here has a new supervisor with a fine record of getting things done.

He is Victor L. White, an Englishman fresh out from Bombay where the Sun shone until the government nationalized insurance services. He handled all of southern India for the company which had a 60-year history there.

Mr. White and wife Zenta have been here about 10 days only, so he is now getting the "feel" of his work. With Sun Life since 1950 the new supervisor is not altogether without training in Canada.

He spent a month at the huge Sun Life head office in Montreal a couple of years ago. Mr. White was assistant manager at the company's Southampton branch before being posted to the Far East.

Sun in Victoria was established about 1910.

HOLDS ARMY RANK

The new Sun Life chief has a fine war service record, winding up with the rank of acting lieutenant colonel. He's still a major with the Royal Army Reserve.

He enlisted from OTC in 1939, is a Dunkirk veteran and was with the desert army in North Africa where he was wounded. Patched up in four months he took part in the Salerno landing and then was in on D-Day invasion. He was attached to staff in Germany until 1950.

His service was with the famed Grenadier Guards.

RUSSIA-BORN

Wife Zenta has a background of considerable interest also: Russian-born, she was brought up in Latvia and fled to Germany when Russian revolutionaries forced her to flee. Refusing to work for the Nazi, she was placed in a sort of concentration camp.

It was her husband-to-be who rescued her from there. The colonel, by the way, was one of the first officers to see the notorious Belsen concentration camp where thousands perished.

Mr. White hasn't the kindest words for India's officials. Income tax is a straight 50 per cent, with no deductions. To get passage clearance this payment must be up to scratch—and it's difficult even then to get clearance.

"They are rather unscrupulous, full of bribery and corruption," he said.

It took him three months to get out of the country, and being presented with the necessary papers was then visited by a tax official who said "what are you going to give me? I could have helped you up longer."

He snorted, in a gentlemanly manner, at the recollection. India today, he theorized, wants "our money and brains," but not us.

Of Victoria: "I'd certainly rather live here."

He's buying a house in Fairfield and is currently in a motel. But most of his time is spent on the fourth floor of the old Times building, Fort Street, where Sun Life is located.

AT TORONTO Pipeline Shares Leap Ahead

The Canadian stock markets this week settled back in jittery fashion as the Middle East crisis continued, with reports which tended to scare away market investors.

The United States presidential elections Tuesday caused only a ripple of excitement across the market. That factor had apparently been discounted in preceding weeks.

In general, prices changed little. But pipeline stocks leapt ahead as Middle East reports said the Suez Canal was blocked and some oil pipelines were damaged in the Iraq fights.

The busiest hour of the week was the first one Wednesday when investors scurried to buy stocks after Eisenhower's re-election. Trading quietened down, later, however, as investors again turned their attention to the Middle East.

TRANS-MOUNTAIN CLIMBS

Trans-Mountain featured pipeline issues traded on the Toronto stock exchange. It closed a week ago at $79 but Friday it had jumped to $91.75 and at one time during the day was at a high of $95.

One of the main reasons for the stocks soar was the announcement Wednesday that the company had declared its initial dividend and had made plans for a five-for-one split in shares.

Estimated earnings for the company's first nine months this year was double the amount for the same period in 1955.

Trading on Chatco Steel common shares was suspended by the TSE Tuesday for what the investigating staff termed "a high-pressure stock-selling campaign, operated from New York City, being carried on over the long distance telephone to United States investors."

The stock closed Monday at $16.124, close to its year's high of $16.624, reached last week. The stock reached its low May 10 at $3.30.

Week's index changes at Toronto: Industrials up 2.07 to 465.85; golds off .66 to 79.20; base metals off .54 to 232.28; western oils off .31 to 153.36.

Of 799 issues traded, 363 declined, 268 advanced and 168 were unchanged. There were 106 lows for the year against 15 new highs.

Week's index changes at Montreal: Banks up 0.17 to 51.79; utilities up 0.3 to 138.8; industrials up 1.5 to 297.3; combined up 1.1 to 244.5; papers off .33 to 143.32; golds off 0.74 to 76.24.
